Marinwood Fire Chief Under Pressure To Quit

Commissioners Claim Ray Is Lax In Duties

Marinwood Fire Chief Donald G. Ray, under fire since last year, today faced a "quit or be fired" ultimatum from the Marinwood Community Services District fire commissioners.

Final action, however, is up to the Community Services District which meets next Thursday.

"The members of the Marinwood Community Services District have been advised of the fire commission's recommendation regarding Chief Ray," said Howard Council, District chairman this morning.

"These are serious charges," said Council, "and we intend to conduct a thorough investigation of them prior to the Jan. 18 meeting with the idea of rendering a decision that will serve the best interest of the Marinwood Community."

SOME SUPPORT

Support for Chief Ray came this morning from Jay Walsh, member of the Marinwood Citizens Committee executive board. "The executive board considers Chief Ray a capable, competent, industrious public servant," said Walsh. He said the executive board intends calling a special meeting of the Citizens Committee prior to the Jan. 18 meeting. "The executive board plans to attend the Community Services District meeting in public support of Ray."

Chief Ray, who contends he has been trying to run his department under adverse conditions of understaffing and tight budget, declared this morning: "I have no intention of resigning."

ONLY COMMENT

"My only comment is that I have been trying to run a department that is understaffed with a tight budget and provide the people of Marinwood with all the available fire protection and safety that can be available under the circumstances," said Ray. "My main concern is providing for the safety of the residents of the community and doing a fireman's job."

Fire Commission Chairman Robert Morris said the commission last night unanimously recommended that "Chief Ray be requested to resign and on his failure to do so that he be dismissed." The commission met at Morris' home to discuss the status of the fire chief, who was put on probation last September.

Teachers Backing Smith In Novato

A substantial majority of Novato High School teachers have declared that communications between them and Supt. William J. J. Smith have been clear and open and that fear of retribution did not enter into teacher-superintendent relations.

Smith submitted his resignation last month following a closed meeting with the board of trustees. The board accepted the resignation by a 3 to 2 vote. His present contract expires on June 30.

Among the charges leveled at Smith are that communications are bad between the administrator and teachers, and that teachers are afraid of reprisals if they oppose the superintendent. It was also charged that teachers were unhappy when Smith advocated raises for administrators before teachers.

In a special faculty meeting on Thursday, 37 of 47 teachers, voting by secret ballot, said communications with the administrator were clear. Three said communications were not good and four abstained from voting.

Thirty-seven also said they had no fear of retribution. Two said they were afraid of their jobs and five abstained.

As to whether Smith's administrative policies have adversely affected teacher's morale, the vote was 33 "no," five "yes." Six teachers did not vote on the morale question.

A fourth question on the ballot asked: "Do you feel there would be very little morale problem if the salary question were resolved satisfactorily?" A total of 33 said "yes," five voted "no" and six did not vote.

The results of the ballot were tabulated and submitted by Fielding L. Reese, assistant principal at the high school. Reese said the decision to hold the special meeting was reached at a regular faculty meeting on Wednesday.

The school faculty numbers 47. Three teachers were absent from Thursday's meeting because of teaching assignments, Reese said.

Comedian Ernie Kovacs Dies As Auto Crashes Power Pole

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ernie Kovacs, the zany comedian whose show business career blazed like a meteor for five bright years was killed early today on the way home from a baby shower.

His station wagon skidded across wet pavement a half-block from the Beverly Hilton Hotel and careened into a power pole.

The impact hurled the 42-year-old actor halfway out of the bashed-in car. The coroner's office, which identified him on arrival, said he suffered severe head injuries.

His wife of nine years, actress Edie Adams, was driving another car ahead of him but went on to their $600,000 Bel Air mansion, unaware that her husband had wrecked. She learned afterward, from their hosts for the evening, director Billy Wilder and his wife. The Wilders had entertained a score of filmland guests at a stork shower in Mrs. Milton Berle's honor.

The smashup occurred shortly before 2 a.m. on Santa Monica Boulevard in west Los Angeles.

Kovacs was one of Hollywood's most colorful characters — the son of a Hungarian tavern keeper and a natural comedian. One movie director said Kovacs didn't need a script. It was best, he said, to give Kovacs a minute's warning and let him improvise.

He was equally at home in television, motion pictures — in which he was rather a Johnny-come-lately — and on the stage.

Friends said Miss Adams had gone early to the party and Kovacs joined her later after having worked late. When they left, he followed her.

A short time later the Wilders heard news of the crash on the radio and rushed to the Kovacs' home to be with Miss Adams. She collapsed on hearing the news and was placed under a doctor's care.

Kovacs and his singing star wife had lived the way folks used to think of movie stars as living — in a gadget-filled, 17-room Coldwater Canyon home full of his collections: armor, antique lamps, first editions, carvings and statuary. It boasted such things as indoor waterfall, a driveway turntable and a wine cellar that took second place to few.

200 Reported Dead In Nation Cold Wave

Severe cold knifed deep into the South again early today, dealing hard-hit citrus and vegetable growers in Texas and Florida another economic blow.

Losses from the record-breaking cold, which has held an icy grip on the Deep South since Tuesday, total millions of dollars. Citrus crop damage in the lower Rio Grande Valley alone has been placed at 19 million dollars.

The storm, the most severe of the winter and one of the worst in many years, has been blamed for more than 200 deaths across the nation.

Although temperatures were less severe yesterday in an area stretching from Arizona to the mid-Atlantic Coast, the Weather Bureau warned of a new storm brewing in the Rockies. It posted heavy snow warnings for Nebraska and Kansas and said the storm would sweep across the Central Plains toward the northern Great Lakes over the weekend.

Low readings in Florida included 24 at Gainesville, 33 in Tampa and 25 at Jacksonville, which was hit by freezing rain yesterday. The ice froze birds to the trees in the usually sunny city.

Snow and sleet made driving hazardous in the coastal area from Virginia to northern Florida, coating trees and wires over a wide area. Snowfall ranged from five inches in Wilson, N.C., to a trace in Tallahassee, Fla. To the north another storm dumped up to three inches of snow at Cape Cod and Nantucket, Mass.

Temperatures skidded to sub-zero marks in parts of New England where skies were mostly clear.

Snow fell in most of the western half of the nation, reaching depths of two inches or more in parts of Oregon, Nevada, Idaho and Montana. Rain showers dampened the Pacific Coast area, which was the only major area outside southern Florida to escape freezing temperatures.

Temperatures were in the 40s and 50s in most of California where some frost damage was reported to tomatoes, peppers and squash in the Coachella and Imperial Valleys.

In Utah, an air search for a missing plane was called off because of bad weather, and the Colorado end of the seach was also expected to be halted. The tanker meteor from East Chicago, Ind., got stuck in the ice today at the mouth of the St. Joseph River at Benton Harbor, Mich. The Coast Guard dispatched a cutter to aid the petroleum-loaded tanker.

Ehrlich Jr. Won't Press Any Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—J. W. Ehrlich Jr., was in satisfactory condition today from a knife wound he claimed was inflicted by his wife.

Ehrlich, 40, son of famous trial lawyer Jacob Ehrlich, was wounded in the abdomen Thursday night in a scuffle with his wife, Isabella, 35.

Mrs. Ehrlich was released on bail after being booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon—a knife with a curved, five-inch blade.

Ehrlich told police he was not going to sign a complaint against his wife. "I want to forget the whole matter. I just want to get a divorce and live in peace," he said.

Mrs. Ehrlich said the stabbing occurred while she and Ehrlich were struggling for the knife. Ehrlich said she stabbed him as he entered his room in a San Francisco Motel.

The couple had quarreled earlier in the evening in the motel's bar.

Ex-Deputy In Robbery Is Battling For Life

Former Marin Deputy Sheriff James Baird Jr., 42, who bungled a bank holdup in Cleveland, Ohio, yesterday and then tried suicide, was reported "battling for his life" this morning at a hospital there.

Baird's whereabouts had been unreported for a month after he vanished with two child-molesting charges facing him in Marin.

His attempt to rob the Eastgate branch of the Central National Bank was foiled when a part-time teller, Mrs. Irene Crow, screamed for help, the United Press International reported.

Police said he shot himself only a few doors from a motel where he had stolen the car in which police found him.

Baird vanished last month with child-molesting charges facing him. He was arrested at his Daly City home Dec. 10 and later charged with molesting the 9-year-old daughter of a present Marin deputy sheriff and a 12-year-old Mill Valley girl. He skipped $1,050 bail after pleading innocent Dec. 13.

Baird was a deputy sheriff in Marin from Feb. 15, 1956, to Oct. 31, 1959. He resigned Oct. 16, 1959, giving no reason. He previously was a policeman in Daly City, resigning in 1954. He served as a Sausalito policeman in 1955-56. He was a guard at San Francisco International Airport when Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, Sheriff's Inspector Marco M. Melovich and Novato Police Chief Roy McLaren arrested him last month on the charge of molesting the deputy's daughter.

Two Injured In Accidents On Highway

A San Rafael woman was run over by her own car yesterday about 4 p.m. when she was thrown to the pavement when her car skidded into another on Highway 101 near the Corte Madera overpass.

According to the California Highway Patrol, a car driven by Donna Mae Briggs, 28, of 307 Arias Street in San Rafael, struck the rear of the car of Freya Holt, 37-year-old Point Reyes housewife. Both cars were southbound in the rain about one-half mile south of Corte Madera.

Miss Briggs, a clerk at Fairchild Semiconductor Corp., of San Rafael, was thrown from her car and run over by the left rear wheel, officers said. Mrs. Holt's car spun out of control and came to rest on the divider in the center of the highway.

Both drivers suffered cuts and bruises, attendants at Marin General Hospital said. Miss Briggs was released after treatment. Mrs. Holt was kept for observation and was in good condition today.

Officers said no citation was issued. The accident was probably caused by tires skidding on the wet pavement, the official report stated.

Eel River Flood Control Group Elects President

Robert La Rue of Napa County yesterday was elected president for 1962 of the Eel River Flood Control and Water Conservation Assn.

Marin County — along with Humboldt, Lake, Mendocino, Sonoma, Napa, Solano, Trinity and Yolo Counties — is a member of the association formed in 1959 to study water resources.

Attending the meeting yesterday in Ukiah from Marin County were William T. Bagley, assemblyman from Marin and Sonoma Counties; Supervisor Peter H. Behr; Jerome G. Gilbert, North Marin Water District manager and chief engineer; William R. Seeger, Marin Municipal Water District manager and chief engineer; and Marin Municipal Water District directors George W. Thierbach, B. G. Grant and Dr. Leo Stanley.

Humboldt County Supervisor Melvin J. Bareilles was named association vice president; Arthur Willey King of Lake County was elected secretary.

Gilbert, chairman of the association committee on engineering, reported his committee was continuing successful use of state facilities for technical research. The association will request an increase in allowance from the boards of supervisors from the present $50 a year to $500, it was reported.

Speaking to the group was J. C. Fraser, chief of the water projects branch of the California Department of Fish and Game.

Dominican Navy Officers Jailed

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—Dominican Armed Forces Secretary Rafael Rodriguez Echavarria today announced the arrest of a number of navy officers he said were involved in a plot to overthrow the government and restore the Trujillist regime.

"All these militaries," the communique said, "have been proven to be reactionary Trujillistas closely allied with certain figures of the past regime and opposition elements."

Laos Peace Failure?

GENEVA (UPI)—Flat refusal by Prince Boun Oum of Laos to give up his army and police powers to "neutralist" Prince Souvanna Phouma today foreshadowed another failure by the 14 nation conference on Laos to end the crisis in the Southeast Asian kingdom.

A San Rafael woman was run over by her own car yesterday about 4 p.m. when she was thrown to the pavement when her car skidded into another on Highway 101 near the Corte Madera overpass.

According to the California Highway Patrol, a car driven by Donna Mae Briggs, 28, of 307 Arias Street in San Rafael, struck the rear of the car of Freya Holt, 37-year-old Point Reyes housewife. Both cars were southbound in the rain about one-half mile south of Corte Madera.

Miss Briggs, a clerk at Fairchild Semiconductor Corp., of San Rafael, was thrown from her car and run over by the left rear wheel, officers said. Mrs. Holt's car spun out of control and came to rest on the divider in the center of the highway.

Both drivers suffered cuts and bruises, attendants at Marin General Hospital said. Miss Briggs was released after treatment. Mrs. Holt was kept for observation and was in good condition today.

Officers said no citation was issued. The accident was probably caused by tires skidding on the wet pavement, the official report stated.

Dominican Navy Officers Jailed

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—Dominican Armed Forces Secretary Rafael Rodriguez Echavarria today announced the arrest of a number of navy officers he said were involved in a plot to overthrow the government and restore the Trujillist regime.

A communique issued by Rodriguez Echavarria said "a plot has been discovered in the navy which involved various officers and men in that service. It said the officers were being court-martialled.

"All these militaries," the communique said, "have been proven to be reactionary Trujillistas closely allied with certain figures of the past regime and opposition elements."

Eel River Flood Control Group Elects President

Robert La Rue of Napa County yesterday was elected president for 1962 of the Eel River Flood Control and Water Conservation Assn.

Marin County — along with Humboldt, Lake, Mendocino, Sonoma, Napa, Solano, Trinity and Yolo Counties — is a member of the association formed in 1959 to study water resources.

Attending the meeting yesterday in Ukiah from Marin County were William T. Bagley, assemblyman from Marin and Sonoma Counties; Supervisor Peter H. Behr; Jerome G. Gilbert, North Marin Water District manager and chief engineer; William R. Seeger, Marin Municipal Water District manager and chief engineer; and Marin Municipal Water District directors George W. Thierbach, B. G. Grant and Dr. Leo Stanley.

Humboldt County Supervisor Melvin J. Bareilles was named association vice president; Arthur Willey King of Lake County was elected secretary.

Gilbert, chairman of the association committee on engineering, reported his committee was continuing successful use of state facilities for technical research. The association will request an increase in allowance from the boards of supervisors from the present $50 a year to $500, it was reported.

Speaking to the group was J. C. Fraser, chief of the water projects branch of the California Department of Fish and Game.

Liberals In House Want Steering Unit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of a House Democratic liberal group say they expect to get what they wanted all along: a steering committee to "advise and consult" on party legislative plans.

And they say they have reached a private understanding with Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts to get the machinery moving in a week or 10 days.

Publicly, at his first news conference yesterday as speaker, McCormack was only lukewarm to the idea.

"I would have no objection if the Democratic caucus decides to do it," he said.

But he added he would take no active part in setting up such a steering committee.

McCormack previously had said "a policy committee is out."

But Rep. Chet Holifield of California, a leading proponent of the steering committee, said the group never had sought power to dictate policy to the House's new Democratic leaders or supplant the powerful and often conservative Rules Committee, which governs the flow of legislation to the House floor. He made a sharp distinction between a "steering committee" and a "policy committee."

Other sources said that what the liberal group wanted all along was a committee that would:

Be democratically elected by the caucus with representatives of each geographical region;

Have a function of advising and consulting with McCormack's leadership on legislative business;

Derive its power from the action of the party caucus.

They said McCormack in private meetings had agreed to this format and they doubted it will be necessary to bring the mater before the caucus by petition. But they said they had the required 50 signatures if needed.

School Aid Bill Action Is Promised

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration "will do everything possible" to help federal aid to public schools pass through Congress, declares Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff.

"I urge on the members of both houses of Congress that they press vigorously for action on the president's total program for federal aid to education," he said in a statement. "Everything possible will be done to get this bill considered favorably by the House of Representatives."

A White House official also said Kennedy stood on his State of the Union message in which he urged Congress to act on a program of aid to education.

This official described as untrue a report the administration will not put its shoulder behind the general school aid bill, preferring to press for action on less controversial education measures.

State Funds Going Out

SACRAMENTO (AP) — More money went out of California's General Fund for the first half of the 1961-62 fiscal year than came in, says State Controller Alan Cranston.

Revenue to the end of December totaled $638,137,023—.3 per cent less than for the first six months of fiscal 1960-61.

Expenditures amounted to $820,264,359, a 2.9 per cent increase.

The cash balance in the General Fund was $3,205,831 on Dec. 31.

Cranston said the biggest income producer was the sales tax which brought in $365,790,918. That's 2½ per cent more than it did in the same period of 1960-61.

Ugly Picture Of American Life Drawn

DAVIS (AP) — A caricature of America as an ugly, mechanized land full of unfeeling people watching TV was drawn by historian Lewis Mumford yesterday.

It's a caricature, he told a regional planning conference, but too close to reality for comfort.

And before the planners can do anything serious about it, Americans must change their view of life and attach themselves to more public purposes and higher ends, Mumford said.

MYTH OF LIFE

The planners met at the University of California branch here to discuss a regional plan for a 19-county area of the Central Valley.

Mumford, now professor in governmental affairs at UC's Berkeley campus, told them Americans must "overthrow the myth of the machine and replace it with a new myth of life."

That must be based above all, he said, "on a deeply religious faith in man's own capacity to transform and perfect his own self in cooperative relation with all the forces of nature, and, above all, with his fellow men."

CARICATURE

In his caricature of America, Mumford talked of blighted cities, "green ghetto" suburbs, clogged freeways, desecrated resorts, imitation bread, phony publicity, sterile offices, jammed parking lots and household gadgets.

Even on TV, he said, the American gets "only so much of the real world as the great corporate organizations, military and commercial, that control this medium will permit for the furtherance of their own machine-expanding ends and the buttressing of their own positions of power."

He said he intentionally caricatured American life.

GRIM ROUTINE

"I am as well aware as you are of the many qualifications and modifications that make much of it bearable, and some of it positively rewarding."

But he said Americans seem to be heading for this grim daily routine:

"Six hours for automatic production and forced consumption in order to maintain the expanding economy; three hours for transportation; six hours for mechanized togetherness, sometimes called family life and recreation; and finally, at least nine hours of sleep, partly to forget that we have not been living, partly to provide for the increasing sale of sleeping pills, hypnotics and tranquillizers, those indispensable adjuncts of the kind of life we offer to our highly mechanizes and urbanized population."

Peruvian Villagers Mourn Victims Of Slide That Claimed Thousands

RANRAHIRCA, Peru (AP) — Little could be done for this Andean village today but mourn the victims of a thunderous avalanche. Ranrahirca is already dead and buried. There is nothing to rebuild. There is no one to rebuild for.

Forty-five feet of rock and mud entomb this farming village, most of its Indian peasant residents, its Roman Catholic church, its tile-roofed houses, school and stores.

It is now considered futile to try to unearth the debris in search of the dead, although a few poke around in the morass in search of relatives and friends.

Ranrahirca, once a peaceful village nestled in Huylas Valley under towering snow-capped peaks, is a tomb. Perhaps services will be held over it later.

The thunderous slide of ice, rock, mud and boulders as large as four-story buildings virtually erased Ranrahirca and neighboring Yanama after dusk Wednesday. More than 8,000 persons are officially listed as residents of these two villages and their surrounding rural areas.

Other villages and settlements in the Inca farming valley also were swallowed up in the mile-long sea of mud and stones.

How many died may never be known. Official estimates run from 1,500 to several thousand.

Fewer than 100 bodies have been recovered. Most will not be.

Another avalanche in this same Ancash Province 21 years ago killed an estimated 5,000 persons. Only 300 bodies were recovered then. Wednesday's avalanche provided its own mass grave. Virtually everyone in its path was killed in his tracks.

The deadly swath was born on the slopes of 22,205-foot Mount Huascaran — Peru's highest peak — and was unloosed by summer warmth.

The sun had settled behind the towering peaks when the slide swept nine miles down a canyon and into the countryside. Most in Ranrahirca were in their homes, just finishing dinner. Minutes later, all but 50 of the nearly 500 residents were dead.

Under a steady drizzle and a gloomy mist rescue teams arrived in numbers to care for the survivors.

Nations, organizations and individuals opened their hearts and purses to help rush medicines, foodstuffs and clothing into this valley 200 miles north of Lima. But there was little to do.

Still to be reckoned with was nature itself. The huge icefall left many overhanding sheives, creating the danger of more avalanche, reported the Development Ministry. It declared the area an emergency zone.

High Interest Rates Aid U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The treasury has found that the recent move to allow higher interest payments on savings deposited with banks is making it easier to manage the record national debt.

It might seem that the higher rates offered savers would compound the treasury's difficulties by tending to make all borrowing more costly. While this is true to some extent, the treasury believes this effect is outweighed by a shift in the investment habits of banks. Formerly banks were heavy buyers of short term bills, the securities which offer the lowest yield, but now they are more interested in longer term government issues paying higher yields.

Treasury officials said banks will not offer the department serious competition for funds by providing a 4 per cent rate on savings deposits. They said that those who save through banks generally are not the same group buying government securities.

Zoo Leader Will Talk In Marin

Carey Baldwin, director of the San Francisco Zoo, will discuss some of his experiences with animals when he appears as guest speaker at the annual membership meeting of the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum (formerly the Junior Museum of Marin) Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Baldwin, together with Dr. Earl S. Herald of the Steinhart Aquarium and Mel L. Morse, manager of the Marin Humane Society, assisted the museum with the design for its recently completed seal pond and plans for its future outside animal quarters.

Election of a new board of directors for 1962 is also scheduled for the meeting at the museum, said David H. Plant, president.

Goldwater Says World Is Not Ready For U.N.

BELMONT, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) says there is no reason why the United States should continue participation in the United Nations.

"The idea was wonderful," he said, "but the world is not ready for it."

He said he always had been charitably inclined to the United Nations but, he added, "since the Communists can stop any peace movement, the United Nations becomes more ineffective."

Speaking in the home town of the leader of the militantly conservative John Birch Society last night, Goldwater said he did not know of one member of that group who is in the White House.

But, he added, "The Americans for Democratic Action, who talk about peaceful coexistence, are in the White House close to the president. There are 31 members of the ADA there."

"I am not worried about the extreme right wing in our country," Goldwater said. "They are not in government in Washington. I am worried about the extremists to the left who are in government."

Goldwater spoke at the Belmont High School Auditorium.

When asked if he would accept support from the John Birch Society, he said: "I would accept political support."

High Interest Rates Aid U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The treasury has found that the recent move to allow higher interest payments on savings deposited with banks is making it easier to manage the record national debt.

It might seem that the higher rates offered savers would compound the treasury's difficulties by tending to make all borrowing more costly. While this is true to some extent, the treasury believes this effect is outweighed by a shift in the investment habits of banks. Formerly banks were heavy buyers of short term bills, the securities which offer the lowest yield, but now they are more interested in longer term government issues paying higher yields.

Treasury officials said banks will not offer the department serious competition for funds by providing a 4 per cent rate on savings deposits. They said that those who save through banks generally are not the same group buying government securities.

Goldwater Says World Is Not Ready For U.N.

BELMONT, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) says there is no reason why the United States should continue participation in the United Nations.

"The idea was wonderful," he said, "but the world is not ready for it."

He said he always had been charitably inclined to the United Nations but, he added, "since the Communists can stop any peace movement, the United Nations becomes more ineffective."

Speaking in the home town of the leader of the militantly conservative John Birch Society last night, Goldwater said he did not know of one member of that group who is in the White House.

But, he added, "The Americans for Democratic Action, who talk about peaceful coexistence, are in the White House close to the president. There are 31 members of the ADA there."

"I am not worried about the extreme right wing in our country," Goldwater said. "They are not in government in Washington. I am worried about the extremists to the left who are in government."

Goldwater spoke at the Belmont High School Auditorium.

When asked if he would accept support from the John Birch Society, he said: "I would accept political support."

Tomales School Chief Awarded New Contract

A three-year contract was approved last night by the Tomales Joint Union High School District trustees for Supt. Anthony Matulich.

Matulich, whose present contract expires on June 30, is completing his fifth year as superintendent. He will continue on the job at his present $12,000 annual salary.

The trustees were told that federal funds have been approved for installation of a language laboratory at Tomales High School. Application for $1,258, one-half the cost of the lab, was submitted to the federal government under the National Defense Education Act last summer. Approval was granted during Christmas vacation, Matulich reported.

A unanimous vote by the trustees opposed a proposed annexation of a portion of the district now in the Bloomfield Elementary School District by the Two Rock Union Elementary School District. The board said they opposed any reduction in the size of the district and that no problems were indicated which could not be solved by means other than annexation.

It was announced that Dr. J. Cecil Parker, professor of education at the University of California, and Don Wolfe, vice principal of Washington High School in Fremont, would speak to district faculty members on institute day, Jan. 26, at the high school.

commission's action came as a result of Ray's failure to "perform and submit performance of certain work supposed to be accomplished by Oct. 1, 1961, during his probationary period."

This work consisted of preparation of equipment check list, records of equipment maintenance, institution of an adequate training program for firemen, and the institution of procedures for the purchase of additional equipment, said Morris.

"The procedures that are now in operation at the Marinwood fire department are wholly inadequate to develop and maintain an adequate department to meet the needs of the community," said Morris. "There is a definite need for a more efficient and effective operation of the fire department. The lack of an adequate training program for the firemen has resulted in a loss of interest in the department by both volunteer firemen and the other paid firemen."

Morris said that the "loss of interest" due to the lack of a training program had been testified to by several of the volunteer firemen during "previous sessions when we discussed the problem of Ray's status."

At last night's meeting which was attended by Ray, Morris said that the commissioners "cited certain deficiencies in the maintenance of both the fire engine and hydrants" as a basis for their action against Ray.

"These are conditions that should be corrected immediately" said Morris.

Morris said that the list of charges against Ray came after Ray had asked after the motion was put on the floor for a specific list of the charges against him.

This is the first time that the commission has listed the charges against Ray since he was put on urobation last September. At that time, the commission, then under the chairmanship of David Dryfoos, made an unannounced decision to put the fire chief on a three-month probation to end Dec. 24.

2 Marin City Youths Held In Car Theft

Two 17-year-old Marin City youths were in Marin County Juvenile Hall today for stealing a California state car from a San Francisco motor pool and driving it to Marin City where they stripped it of tires and parts.

The car theft, which occurred on Jan. 4, came to light Thursday when Deputy Sheriff Boyd Burnham spotted a 1956 sedan abandoned at Drake and Buckelew Streets in Marin City. It had the state seal on the side.

Both right wheels were gone, and an old rim had been placed on the right side to keep the vehicle up. Deputy Burnham traced the rim to a Marin City service station, whose owner said he had lent the rim to some boys.

Deputy Burnham tracked down the boys, who admitted the theft. They said they went to a San Francisco movie, spent all their money and stole the car from a Standard Service Station lot where many state cars are kept.

The boys were held for San Francisco police.

Barbara Burns Story

Statements made by the late Barbara Burns of Los Angeles about marrying David J. Mack, now serving time in San Quentin on a narcotics charge, were wrongly attributed to Robert Carrow, Novato attorney.

Vaccination Lack Causes Surveillance

A San Rafael man just returned from a visit to England is being kept under surveillance by the Marin County Health Department because he reached New York without vaccination against smallpox, it was learned today.

On arrival in New York he was given his choice between being vaccinated there, with subsequent checkup for a few days by his local health authorities, or remaining in quarantine on Staten Island for the duration of the smallpox incubation period. He chose the first course.

Public health authorities said they had tightened regulations because of recent arrival in England of two cases of smallpox originating in Pakistan.

"This illustrates the importance of keeping immunity to smallpox active by revaccination at least every five years throughout life," said Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

Among his movies were "Operation Mad Ball," "Bell, Book and Candle," "It Happened to Jane," "Our Man in Havana" and "Cry for Happy." His last film was "Sail a Crooked Ship."

Miss Adams, Kovacs' second wife, and he had a child, Mia Susan, born in 1959. He had two other daughters by his first wife. They are Betty, 15, and Kippie, 13.

"I never want to leave home," he told an interviewer recently.

"I never want to leave my wife. My kids. I love my home."

Authorities Probe Flare Which Fell Through Roof

Novato police and officials at Hamilton Air Force Base today are investigating a metal flare which fell through the roof of the Robert B. Cefalu home at 1282 Leafwood Drive, Novato.

Cefalu told police that the projectile fell and hit his house on Christmas Eve, going through the roof and piercing the ceiling of the bedroom.

It turned out to be an aluminum tube one and one-half inches in diameter and nine inches long. It had four gas holes on one end and gave indication of having been fired recently.

Novato police took it to the explosive ordinance displosal unit at Hamilton Air Force Base which identified it as a hand held army type rocket parachute flare. It goes up to 1,600 feet and has a red flame that lights for about 30 seconds.

Hamilton officials are still trying to determine from where the army parachute flare came. Cefalu told police he remembers a bright red light on Christmas Eve.

"There's too much talk on TV," he said.

In his early TV days, in the early fifties, he established such notable institutions as "The Early Eyeball Fraternal Marching Society." He was a columnist for the Trentonian at Trenton, N. J., from 1945 to 1950, and at various times did stints at radio disc jockeying, running a TV cooking show, and managing his own stock company.

Among his movies were "Operation Mad Ball," "Bell, Book and Candle," "It Happened to Jane," "Our Man in Havana" and "Cry for Happy." His last film was "Sail a Crooked Ship."

Miss Adams, Kovacs' second wife, and he had a child, Mia Susan, born in 1959. He had two other daughters by his first wife. They are Betty, 15, and Kippie, 13.

"I never want to leave home," he told an interviewer recently.

Authorities Probe Flare Which Fell Through Roof

Novato police and officials at Hamilton Air Force Base today are investigating a metal flare which fell through the roof of the Robert B. Cefalu home at 1282 Leafwood Drive, Novato.

Cefalu told police that the projectile fell and hit his house on Christmas Eve, going through the roof and piercing the ceiling of the bedroom.

It turned out to be an aluminum tube one and one-half inches in diameter and nine inches long. It had four gas holes on one end and gave indication of having been fired recently.

Novato police took it to the explosive ordinance displosal unit at Hamilton Air Force Base which identified it as a hand held army type rocket parachute flare. It goes up to 1,600 feet and has a red flame that lights for about 30 seconds.

Hamilton officials are still trying to determine from where the army parachute flare came. Cefalu told police he remembers a bright red light on Christmas Eve.

'Committee Of 30' Played Unusual Role In Old China

By RANDALL GOULD

Although many former Far Easterners live in Marin County, few if any are likely to know of Shanghai's unusual "Committee of Thirty."

Yet for years it played an unusual role as bridge of communication between missionary and business leaders of the American community. This is significant today because it virtually closed all gaps of understanding before political events wiped out American activities in China.

The committee was a form of club operating semi-secretly. It held monthly meetings usually attended by its full membership of 15 missionaries—all Protestant, since the Catholics felt unable to participate—and 15 businessmen. Nothing said at these sessions was ever reported publicly.

By tacit agreement in which the local foreign press voluntarily concurred the Committee of Thirty was treated as though it didn't exist.

AMERICANS SEPARATE

Sole reason for this lay in the unusual conditions perpetually prevailing in China. Even Americans in the country were far from united, while the country seemed continually to drift toward chaos though there were occasional refreshing periods of hope.

In Marin County, it is hard to realize how divided the religious and trade representatives of this country were some years ago. Writers such as Somerset Maugham have described fictionally the bitterness often prevailing in remote parts of China between missionaries and representatives of the tobacco interests—they literally wouldn't touch one another.

Shanghai, China's largest port, was headquarters for all forms of foreign enterprise throughout China. The leadership tended to be broadminded and it became aware that the failure of mission and trade circles to understand each other was injurious to both and detrimental to their work.

So the "Committee of Thirty" was set up informally as a dinner and discussion club primarily to give a top-grade forum where prominent visitors could reach the elite of the resident community.

Meetings were monthly, or whenever some notable traveler came along. Speeches were informal, candid and strictly off the record. No confidence ever was broken. Men of ambassadorial rank spoke freely.

The result was twofold: Remarkable basic information became available to the highest Americans in China, and in their free discussion they ironed out differences of attitude.

Membership, by invitation, was highly prized and its privileges safeguarded. Though the general public knew nothing of the organization every prominent visitor was made aware of its nature and invitations were seldom refused.

During the 1930s when changing conditions throughout China made it vital that Shanghai know what was happening in the hinterland—especially after the Chinese capitol moved inland from nearby Nanking to first Hankow and then Chungking far up the Yangtze River—a rising percentage of speakers told of observations and interviews throughout China.

Whereas in earlier times the missionaries had regarded the businessmen as economic exploiters of low morals, and the missionaries in turn had been thought of by businessmen as impractical idealists "spoiling the Chinese," through the influence of this common meeting-ground the two parties discovered much community of interest.

Each began to realize that the other meant well, was doing constructive things, and that both needed a practical viewpoint based on facts. Respect grew mutually and so did the common fund for information.

A major job in both camps was to instruct and advise the people back home. This proved considerably easier with actual supporters, religious and business, than with the American government. It was discovered that because of fixed ideas on the part of certain home politicians and editors, the facts of the China situation were being largely disregarded.

This was something the "Committee of Thirty" couldn't lick, even though it ranged with and a unifying force among powerful mission groups, major American business interests and even the American diplomatic and consular representatives.

So in 1949 an end came, temporarily at least, to American participation in Chinese affairs. It seemed a sad paradox that by then, free communication and a process of give and take in argument had just about united the Americans resident in China and set them pretty much at odds with the attitude—idealistic though it seemed—of their own government.

TOLERATION

The essence of the matter was well represented in the whole base of the "Committee of Thirty." Most experienced religious and business leaders felt that the Chinese had to be masters in their own house, and that it would be best for everybody that Americans pursue their historic policy of toleration even on points where the Chinese might seem wrong.

Washington felt that it knew better. It had been increasingly partisan in Chinese affairs and at the last it drew great bitterness toward the United States because of its interference. Chinese felt that even if they made mistakes it was their privilege to make them in their own country and to learn by experience.

So the American and Chinese political ties were burst, and Americans left China or suffered unhappy consequences. The "Committee of Thirty" was a victim along with everything else. For a future time, its record sets an example which may be helpful once more.

'Committee Of 30' Played Unusual Role In Old China

By RANDALL GOULD

Although many former Far Easterners live in Marin County, few if any are likely to know of Shanghai's unusual "Committee of Thirty."

Yet for years it played an unusual role as bridge of communication between missionary and business leaders of the American community. This is significant today because it virtually closed all gaps of understanding before political events wiped out American activities in China.

The committee was a form of club operating semi-secretly. It held monthly meetings usually attended by its full membership of 15 missionaries—all Protestant, since the Catholics felt unable to participate—and 15 businessmen. Nothing said at these sessions was ever reported publicly.

By tacit agreement in which the local foreign press voluntarily concurred the Committee of Thirty was treated as though it didn't exist.

AMERICANS SEPARATE

Sole reason for this lay in the unusual conditions perpetually prevailing in China. Even Americans in the country were far from united, while the country seemed continually to drift toward chaos though there were occasional refreshing periods of hope.

In Marin County, it is hard to realize how divided the religious and trade representatives of this country were some years ago. Writers such as Somerset Maugham have described fictionally the bitterness often prevailing in remote parts of China between missionaries and representatives of the tobacco interests—they literally wouldn't touch one another.

Shanghai, China's largest port, was headquarters for all forms of foreign enterprise throughout China. The leadership tended to be broadminded and it became aware that the failure of mission and trade circles to understand each other was injurious to both and detrimental to their work.

So the "Committee of Thirty" was set up informally as a dinner and discussion club primarily to give a top-grade forum where prominent visitors could reach the elite of the resident community.

Meetings were monthly, or whenever some notable traveler came along. Speeches were informal, candid and strictly off the record. No confidence ever was broken. Men of ambassadorial rank spoke freely.

The result was twofold: Remarkable basic information became available to the highest Americans in China, and in their free discussion they ironed out differences of attitude.

Membership, by invitation, was highly prized and its privileges safeguarded. Though the general public knew nothing of the organization every prominent visitor was made aware of its nature and invitations were seldom refused.

During the 1930s when changing conditions throughout China made it vital that Shanghai know what was happening in the hinterland—especially after the Chinese capitol moved inland from nearby Nanking to first Hankow and then Chungking far up the Yangtze River—a rising percentage of speakers told of observations and interviews throughout China.

Whereas in earlier times the missionaries had regarded the businessmen as economic exploiters of low morals, and the missionaries in turn had been thought of by businessmen as impractical idealists "spoiling the Chinese," through the influence of this common meeting-ground the two parties discovered much community of interest.

Each began to realize that the other meant well, was doing constructive things, and that both needed a practical viewpoint based on facts. Respect grew mutually and so did the common fund for information.

A major job in both camps was to instruct and advise the people back home. This proved considerably easier with actual supporters, religious and business, than with the American government. It was discovered that because of fixed ideas on the part of certain home politicians and editors, the facts of the China situation were being largely disregarded.

This was something the "Committee of Thirty" couldn't lick, even though it ranged with and a unifying force among powerful mission groups, major American business interests and even the American diplomatic and consular representatives.

So in 1949 an end came, temporarily at least, to American participation in Chinese affairs. It seemed a sad paradox that by then, free communication and a process of give and take in argument had just about united the Americans resident in China and set them pretty much at odds with the attitude—idealistic though it seemed—of their own government.

TOLERATION

The essence of the matter was well represented in the whole base of the "Committee of Thirty." Most experienced religious and business leaders felt that the Chinese had to be masters in their own house, and that it would be best for everybody that Americans pursue their historic policy of toleration even on points where the Chinese might seem wrong.

Washington felt that it knew better. It had been increasingly partisan in Chinese affairs and at the last it drew great bitterness toward the United States because of its interference. Chinese felt that even if they made mistakes it was their privilege to make them in their own country and to learn by experience.

So the American and Chinese political ties were burst, and Americans left China or suffered unhappy consequences. The "Committee of Thirty" was a victim along with everything else. For a future time, its record sets an example which may be helpful once more.

Michael McCones Honored Before Leaving For Ghana

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Following an exciting week of packing and parties, the Michael F. McCones with their two small children took off today for Washington, D. C. Mike has been given an administrative position in the Peace Corps and is assigned to Accra, Ghana. He will receive a six weeks' briefing in Washington before he and his family fly to Ghana.

Helping with the packing, also baby sitting with the McCone's two sons, Andy, 18 months and Marron, who is two months old, were Mike's mother, Mrs. Alex McAndrew of Ross, and his sister, Mrs. Albert Dibblee (Jennifer McCone) who arrived Wednesday from Merced. Thursday night Nini McCone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen E. Charles of San Francisco gave a cocktail party as a farewell to the young couple. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. McAndrew, who had intended to give a similar affair but time was too short, and Mrs. Dibblee, who stayed with the McAndrews and left for home today. It was a real fun party with old friends and many young people attending. Mike is a graduate of Yale University, where he majored in political science, and Nini, a Stanford graduate. Many of their former classmates attended. Among those in the family group were Mr. McAndrew's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Peter McAndrew. The McCones, who have been living in San Francisco, were forced to miss the cocktail party Peter and his wife are giving tonight at the Broadway apartment of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Dohrmann Pischel, who have a home in Ross. Co-hosts will be the Allan Sprouls Jr. of San Anselmo. The hosts and their guests will go on to the Gaieties dance.

DR. AND MRS JAMES RIDEOUT of Sleepy Hollow said bon voyage to her brother, James P. Nordyke, his wife and their three children as they embarked on the President Cleveland for a vacation of six months, possible more, in Honolulu. The Nordykes, who have a home in Paradise, Calif., stayed with Dr. and Mrs. Rideout for two weeks prior to their departure. They have taken a home not far from his brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Nordyke in Moana Valley. She is the former Eleanor Cole and was reared in the islands. Her father was an executive with the YMCA there. Dr. and Mrs. Nordyke became the parents of five with the arrival of twin daughters in August.

Dr. and Mrs. Rideout were particularly delighted to be aboard the Cleveland as this was the ship on which they returned to California from Japan six years ago. Dr. Rideout, a captain in the Army, was stationed in Japan for a year and a half. Their young daughter, Skoshi, was born in Hachinohe.

IN DJAKARTA, capital of Indonesia, Clayton and Hazel Drew of Corte Madera spent New Year's Eve. They sailed there from Australia after they spent three weeks in Sydney and visited Melbourne, Adelaide and Perth. They were also in Hobart, capital of Tasmania. They sailed from Djkarta to Singapore and boarded a Dutch liner, Tegelberg, for the cruise to Hong Kong. Hazel wrote she and Clayton would be some time in Japan and sail from Kobe back to San Francisco arriving late in February or early in March. Hazel said it seemed strange to se Christmas shoppers in sun dresses and school children on summer vacation in December. The Drews are making the entire trip by ship and Hazel wrote they had encountered no storms at sea and only a few big waves in the Indian Ocean.

ATTENDING PARTIES before last night's benefit performance of Friedman and Sons in San Francisco, sponsored by Reed Parent-Teachers Club, were several Tiburon and Belvedere residents including the Orton Buckners (she is chairman of the benefit), Dr. and Mrs. P. D. Smith, also Messrs. and Mesdames Alan Littman, Frank Kelly, John Osborne, Walther Buchen, John Kampmeyer, Richard Jones and Vern Holyrod. The Henry Schubarts hosted a gathering after the play.

SLEEK AND SPRINGY

Wellesley Alumnae To Attend Luncheon

Several Marin residents will attend a luncheon Jan. 20 for Miss Virginia Vaughn Sides, assistant to the president of Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., at the Cliff House, San Francisco.

The speaker will be presented by Mrs. George Culler, of Mill Valley, vice president of the Wellesley Bay Area Alumnae. Other alumnae who will attend are Mesdames Edward E. Shev of Sausalito, Richard R. Hughes of Kentfield and Samuel T. D. Anderson of San Rafael.

The luncheon is sponsored by the Wellesley Club of Central California.

Phony Scents

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some people are making dollars out of phony scents, the Better Business Bureau of metropolitan New York has found.

"There isn't a reason in the world for anyone to be taken," Hugh R. Jackson, BBB president, said, "if they remember that they get what they pay for and that in the buying of perfumes—as with everything else—they can't get something for nothing."

EYES TOWARD ROME

The eyes of the fashion world turn toward Rome as Italian designers unveil their wares for Spring 1962. The new Italian look features an easy, elegant silhouette with short, swinging skirts that just cover the knee, and bold Mediterranean colors. Luciani of Rome interprets the look in a suit of textured chartreuse wool. The hip-length jacket, closed with matching tringular buttons, is worn with a multicolor print silk blouse and flyaway ascot tie. The high hat is rough white straw. (UPI Photo)

Italians Hitch Up Waists

ROME (UPI) — Italian designers hitch up their waistlines on the final day of the Italian high fashion collections in Rome. But it is not a mass move back to the "Empire" look.

The fever chart of the waistline has had its ups and downs in the Rome collections. The waist may stray an inch higher or lower than the point where the anatomy books put it — according to the whim of the designer.

The famed Fontana Sisters concentrate on the natural figure. Their line is soft and the curves are de-emphasized.

Eleanora Garnett favors a gentle lift toward the bosom. The highlight of the Garnett collection has been the air chiffon that has floated through the Roman show.

Sarli hoists the belt-line for effect. Fluted pleating plays an important role in his collection —as decoration and as an integral part of the line.

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Following an exciting week of packing and parties, the Michael F. McCones with their two small children took off today for Washington, D. C. Mike has been given an administrative position in the Peace Corps and is assigned to Accra, Ghana. He will receive a six weeks' briefing in Washington before he and his family fly to Ghana.

Helping with the packing, also baby sitting with the McCone's two sons, Andy, 18 months and Marron, who is two months old, were Mike's mother, Mrs. Alex McAndrew of Ross, and his sister, Mrs. Albert Dibblee (Jennifer McCone) who arrived Wednesday from Merced. Thursday night Nini McCone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen E. Charles of San Francisco gave a cocktail party as a farewell to the young couple. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. McAndrew, who had intended to give a similar affair but time was too short, and Mrs. Dibblee, who stayed with the McAndrews and left for home today. It was a real fun party with old friends and many young people attending. Mike is a graduate of Yale University, where he majored in political science, and Nini, a Stanford graduate. Many of their former classmates attended. Among those in the family group were Mr. McAndrew's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Peter McAndrew. The McCones, who have been living in San Francisco, were forced to miss the cocktail party Peter and his wife are giving tonight at the Broadway apartment of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Dohrmann Pischel, who have a home in Ross. Co-hosts will be the Allan Sprouls Jr. of San Anselmo. The hosts and their guests will go on to the Gaieties dance.

DR. AND MRS JAMES RIDEOUT of Sleepy Hollow said bon voyage to her brother, James P. Nordyke, his wife and their three children as they embarked on the President Cleveland for a vacation of six months, possible more, in Honolulu. The Nordykes, who have a home in Paradise, Calif., stayed with Dr. and Mrs. Rideout for two weeks prior to their departure. They have taken a home not far from his brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Nordyke in Moana Valley. She is the former Eleanor Cole and was reared in the islands. Her father was an executive with the YMCA there. Dr. and Mrs. Nordyke became the parents of five with the arrival of twin daughters in August.

Dr. and Mrs. Rideout were particularly delighted to be aboard the Cleveland as this was the ship on which they returned to California from Japan six years ago. Dr. Rideout, a captain in the Army, was stationed in Japan for a year and a half. Their young daughter, Skoshi, was born in Hachinohe.

IN DJAKARTA, capital of Indonesia, Clayton and Hazel Drew of Corte Madera spent New Year's Eve. They sailed there from Australia after they spent three weeks in Sydney and visited Melbourne, Adelaide and Perth. They were also in Hobart, capital of Tasmania. They sailed from Djkarta to Singapore and boarded a Dutch liner, Tegelberg, for the cruise to Hong Kong. Hazel wrote she and Clayton would be some time in Japan and sail from Kobe back to San Francisco arriving late in February or early in March. Hazel said it seemed strange to se Christmas shoppers in sun dresses and school children on summer vacation in December. The Drews are making the entire trip by ship and Hazel wrote they had encountered no storms at sea and only a few big waves in the Indian Ocean.

ATTENDING PARTIES before last night's benefit performance of Friedman and Sons in San Francisco, sponsored by Reed Parent-Teachers Club, were several Tiburon and Belvedere residents including the Orton Buckners (she is chairman of the benefit), Dr. and Mrs. P. D. Smith, also Messrs. and Mesdames Alan Littman, Frank Kelly, John Osborne, Walther Buchen, John Kampmeyer, Richard Jones and Vern Holyrod. The Henry Schubarts hosted a gathering after the play.

Novato Upsets Marin Catholic

Coach O. T. McKatee's 1962 Novato varsity basketball team last night made history. The scrappy crew upset the strong Marin Catholic Wildcats 46-45 to score the North Marin school's first Marin County Athletic League victory—not just this season but of any past season.

The win came in the fleeting final seconds of the game on a clutch field goal by Novato captain Joe Colfer, who also stacked up the most points of anybody on the court last night, including the Wildcats offensive star Jerry Smith. The Catholic rocket was held to 11 counts, as many as Don Scribner, Novato's second best shooter of the evening tallied.

At the final gun the fan-packed Novato gymnasium last night looked like the San Rafael football field when the Bulldogs were upset on their gridiron by the school that was dumped last night. Even before the game had ended fans swarmed onto the court sidelines, and O. T. McKatee got a victory ride to the locker room, as cries of "Redwood next" were heard.

In the final two minutes of the game after Novato had trailed 5 to 11 in the first period, 18 to 16 at half and 31 to 36 in the third quarter, the Hornets tied it up 41-41. The Wildcats surged back to regain the lead 45-43. But then Nick Willard of Novato was fouled. At the charity line with a 1-and-1 situation he made the first shot to make the count 45-44, and missed the second. Marin grabbed the rebound, but lost the ball second later. That's when Colfer did his clutch and winning work with a field goal from outside the Marin key. The Wildcats regained the ball before the gun—but it was too late and the Novato fans went wild.

Martin Baccaglio played an outstanding game for Novato last night as he controlled the boards gaining many of the Hornets 41 takes of rebounds to the Catholics' 24. Then Novato put up an iron wall defense forcing Marin to shoot from the outside where they were weak.

Novato, for the first time this season, shot in depth. Colfer's 15 points on seven field goals was backed up by Don Scribner's 11 counts, Jay Bucy's 9, and Willard's 8 digits.

For Marin, the next best scorer was John Enos with 10, followed by Paul Kruger who tallied 9 points.

VARSITY SCORERS

HALTS LAYUP SHOT — Dave Manuel (31) Sir Francis Drake High guard halts layup shot in second quarter last night by Redwood High's Pete Coy (34). Redwood Smashes Drake High, 47-35

The Redwood High Giants soundly defeated slightly favored Sir Francis Drake High in a Marin County Athletic League game last night at Larkspur, 47-35.

Redwood Coach Dick Hart got the opponents off on the wrong foot when he started his second string and kept them in for four minutes of the first period. By the end of that quarter the count was 15-5 in favor of the Giants, who were ahead 25-13 at the half and 31-19 at the end of the third period.

Jay Johnson paced Redwood with 17 points. But the games' high point man, and Drakes' only good shot last night, was Brad Busch. He tallied 19. Mark Boero played a hustling floor game for Drake, but no Pirates but Busch seemed hot for the hoop.

An outstanding defensive game was turned in by Redwood's Witt Hillard. In the fourth period he grabbed eight straight rebounds. His total for the evening was a high of 10. Redwood hit 40 per cent of its shots. At the charity line the Giants got 17 for 27, Drake 9 for 18.

The Drake Bs won, 41-34. But Redwood swept the Jay Vee and Frosh contests.

Goalby Still Leads Open In San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two of the deadliest money performers in tournament golf, Gary Player and Doug Sanders, posed a major challenge to front running Bob Goalby in the third round of the $25,000 San Diego Open today.

The weather, which turned miserable late yesterday and at best was uncertain today, offered another problem for all of the field, now trimmed to 81 professionals and eight amateurs.

Player was leading money winner in golf last year with $68,377 registered, and Sanders was third, some $4,000 behind Arnold Palmer, with $61,027 to his credit.

Player and Sanders were just two shots back of Goalby as they headed toward the 54th hole point over the par 35-36—71 Stardust Country Club's 6725-yard course.

Player had scores of 69-68—137, while Sanders, after an initial round of 71, boomed into the picture with a 66.

Bulldogs Still Win Happy; Defeat Tam

Coach Mike Diaz Bulldogs are now the team to beat as they hold a 2-0 Marin County Athletic League record and the best won-loss record of non-league games. All the other MCAL teams are now tied for second place in the league with 1-1 counts.

Last night the standout player of the contest was Bulldog Bruce MacPhail who tallied a game high of 16 points, and in the words of his coach, Diaz, played a "whale of a ballgame." Also hot on offense for the winners was Jack Sovereign who chalked 10 points, and usually a defensive star only, Toney Mekisich, who got seven points. Fine ball handling was done by Bulldogs Jack Haney and Bret Tovani.

For Tam, the only man to get in the double figures was Bill Gillingham. He tallied 11 points. Coach Eddie Chavez Indians who blitzed San Rafael in the MCAL tournament to a standstill did not use his run and shoot offense as constantly as in the tournament until the final desperate minutes. And when the Indians did San Rafael, was ready with a solid zone defense.

VARSITY SCORERS

SAN RAFAEL—Sovereign 5-0-1-10, MacPhail 6-4-0-16, Mekisich 3-1-1-7, Tovani 1-2-2-4, Haney 3-0-0-6.

COLLEGE TARS UPSET, 69-54 BY SISKIYOUS

Coach Cal Riemcke was scratching his head today.

His College of Marin Tars who this season beat powerful Santa Ana Junior College in a tournament and are the defending champions of the Golden Valley Basketball Conference were drubbed last night in their 1962 conference debut by rookie Siskiyous Junior College, 69-54.

Tonight a no longer overconfident bunch of Tars will play another conference game at Shasta College.

Reimcke said that his team was beaten by "a long trip, over-confidence, lopsided officiating and a spirited Siskiyous team."

Baseball Writers Will Miss Manager Dressen This Year

HANLEY

Baseball writers traveling the National League beat are going to miss Charlie Dressen this year. Dressen was always good for a story. It never was necessary to keep prodding Charlie with questions. Just one would do the trick and it didn't matter what the subject was if it dealt with baseball

The boys in Toronto, where Dressen is temporarily exiled, will find their work easier with Charlie around. He can fill a column of type faster than half a dozen linotype operators working under a pressing deadline.

We never saw Dressen at a loss for words on baseball. There are some who are convinced he is a supreme egotist. Dressen isn't shy about using "I" but somehow we always had the feeling when he was talking that he had a sympathetic understanding of a sports writer's job.

We remember one spring night in the Tepee Room, which is what the Braves call their press room, Dressen had just become Milwaukee's manager and we asked him "what makes a major league manager, Charlie?" It was a good thing we had our pencil and notebook ready because Dressen was off and running immediately. This is what he had to say:

"MANAGING is mainly handling men and handling a pitching staff. But, first, you got to be able to handle yourself. Biggest thing I had to learn was not say a word and not throw anything either in the clubhouse after losing a tough one.

"If you jump a guy after he's fouled up, you'll either kill his spirit or he'll snap back at you. Either way you've created a problem. So I wait until the next day to go over mistakes.

"In my first clubhouse meeting with the Braves I told them I expected them to abide by curfew and training rules but I expected them to take reasonable chances on the field. I believe Jackie Robinson liked me because I gave him his head on the field. First day I replaced Burt Shotton at Brooklyn, Robinson asked me: 'How do you like to play the game?'

"I TOLD HIM: 'When you step up to the plate get back to it as quickly as you can.' Jackie liked to run. Some guys thought he was showing off when he'd steal or take an extra base when we had a big lead but it wasn't so. Robinson, like Ty Cobb, ran to create pressure. By going when it really didn't count, he was investing for the close game when his running and reputation often would force the other club to fumble or throw wild."

Stanford Tests Big Five Muscles

STANFORD (AP) — Stanford tested its Big Five strength last night and California's Bears wish it had never happened.

Cal lost 74-42.

It was the largest point spread in the long series between the two arch rivals.

The Bears host UCLA tonight in one of two Big Five matches on tap. USC seeks to revenge an 85-67 loss to the Huskies at Washington in the other game.

Darrell Sutherland, tall, skinny Stanford guard, surprised the Bears as much as their margin of defeat. Sutherland clicked for five straight field goals from the 20-foot range in the opening first minutes, propelling Stanford to a 15-3 lead.

The Bears never came close thereafter. It was their third straight AAWU defeat. Sutherland's 18-point total and center John Windsor's 20 points paced the Indians to their seventh victory in nine starts.

Cadets Bad Shots Lose to Half Moon In League Game

Poor shooting was blamed for yesterday's defeat of the San Rafael Military Academy by Half Moon Bay in a Bay Counties League basketball game.

Coach Larry Fulton's Cadets went down in flames 61-53, with the coast town team dominating throughout. Except for Cadet Jim Sulgar and Terry Hoffman "we did not shoot well," said Fulton. Sulgar scored a high of 18 points and Hoffman, also good on defense, scored nine points. Dave Kerr was the San Rafael team's outstanding defender.

San Anselmo Club

The San Anselmo Merchants semi-professional basketball team will clash with the Spiders of San Francisco tomorrow at the Marin team's Memorial Park in San Anselmo at 1 p.m., reported Hub manager Pete Maggi.

Nation's Top Grid Pros Battle Tomorrow

A crowd of 65,000 or more is anticipated, in addition to nation-wide television except for a local blackout.

Kickoff time is 1 p.m., Pacific Standard Time.

Pacing the West are Johnny Unitas, star in last year's Pro Bowl clash, and Bart Starr, ace for the champion Green Bay Packers.

The East's attack will include Y. A. Tittle of Giant fame and Milt Plum, also a quarterback, from Cleveland.

The team rosters on both sides read like a who's who in football, with most of the top players active in the sport today.

Both coaches said they had easy sledding getting ready for the big game.

Novato Upsets Marin Catholic

Coach O. T. McKatee's 1962 Novato varsity basketball team last night made history. The scrappy crew upset the strong Marin Catholic Wildcats 46-45 to score the North Marin school's first Marin County Athletic League victory—not just this season but of any past season.

The win came in the fleeting final seconds of the game on a clutch field goal by Novato captain Joe Colfer, who also stacked up the most points of anybody on the court last night, including the Wildcats offensive star Jerry Smith. The Catholic rocket was held to 11 counts, as many as Don Scribner, Novato's second best shooter of the evening tallied.

At the final gun the fan-packed Novato gymnasium last night looked like the San Rafael football field when the Bulldogs were upset on their gridiron by the school that was dumped last night. Even before the game had ended fans swarmed onto the court sidelines, and O. T. McKatee got a victory ride to the locker room, as cries of "Redwood next" were heard.

In the final two minutes of the game after Novato had trailed 5 to 11 in the first period, 18 to 16 at half and 31 to 36 in the third quarter, the Hornets tied it up 41-41. The Wildcats surged back to regain the lead 45-43. But then Nick Willard of Novato was fouled. At the charity line with a 1-and-1 situation he made the first shot to make the count 45-44, and missed the second. Marin grabbed the rebound, but lost the ball second later. That's when Colfer did his clutch and winning work with a field goal from outside the Marin key. The Wildcats regained the ball before the gun —but it was too late and the Novato fans went wild.

Martin Baccaglio played an outstanding game for Novato last night as he controlled the boards gaining many of the Hornets 41 takes of rebounds to the Catholics' 24. Then Novato put up an iron wall defense forcing Marin to shoot from the outside where they were weak.

Novato, for the first time this season, shot in depth. Colfer's 15 points on seven field goals was backed up by Don Scribner's 11 counts, Jay Bucy's 9, and Willard's 8 digits.

For Marin, the next best scorer was John Enos with 10, followed by Paul Kruger who tallied 9 points.

VARSITY SCORERS

NOVATO—Colfer, 7-1-1-15, Bucy 3-3-3-9, Baccaglio 1-1-5-3, Willard 2-4-3-8, Scribner 4-3-3-11.

Redwood Smashes Drake High, 47-35

The Redwood High Giants soundly defeated slightly favored Sir Francis Drake High in a Marin County Athletic League game last night at Larkspur, 47-35.

Redwood Coach Dick Hart got the opponents off on the wrong foot when he started his second string and kept them in for four minutes of the first period. By the end of that quarter the count was 15-5 in favor of the Giants, who were ahead 25-13 at the half and 31-19 at the end of the third period.

Jay Johnson paced Redwood with 17 points. But the games' high point man, and Drakes' only good shot last night, was Brad Busch. He tallied 19. Mark Boero played a hustling floor game for Drake, but no Pirates but Busch seemed hot for the hoop.

An outstanding defensive game was turned in by Redwood's Witt Hillard. In the fourth period he grabbed eight straight rebounds. His total for the evening was a high of 10. Redwood hit 40 per cent of its shots. At the charity line the Giants got 17 for 27, Drake 9 for 18.

The Drake Bs won, 41-34. But Redwood swept the Jay Vee and Frosh contests.

Goalby Still Leads Open In San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two of the deadliest money performers in tournament golf, Gary Player and Doug Sanders, posed a major challenge to front running Bob Goalby in the third round of the $25,000 San Diego Open today.

The weather, which turned miserable late yesterday and at best was uncertain today, offered another problem for all of the field, now trimmed to 81 professionals and eight amateurs.

Player was leading money winner in golf last year with $68,377 registered, and Sanders was third, some $4,000 behind Arnold Palmer, with $61,027 to his credit.

Player and Sanders were just two shots back of Goalby as they headed toward the 54th hole point over the par 35-36—71 Stardust Country Club's 6725-yard course.

Player had scores of 69-68—137, while Sanders, after an initial round of 71, boomed into the picture with a 66.

Bulldogs Still Win Happy; Defeat Tam

Coach Mike Diaz Bulldogs are now the team to beat as they hold a 2-0 Marin County Athletic League record and the best won-loss record of non-league games. All the other MCAL teams are now tied for second place in the league with 1-1 counts.

Last night the standout player of the contest was Bulldog Bruce MacPhail who tallied a game high of 16 points, and in the words of his coach, Diaz, played a "whale of a ballgame." Also hot on offense for the winners was Jack Sovereign who chalked 10 points, and usually a defensive star only, Toney Mekisich, who got seven points. Fine ball handling was done by Bulldogs Jack Haney and Bret Tovani.

For Tam, the only man to get in the double figures was Bill Gillingham. He tallied 11 points. Coach Eddie Chavez Indians who blitzed San Rafael in the MCAL tournament to a standstill did not use his run and shoot offense as constantly as in the tournament until the final desperate minutes. And when the Indians did San Rafael, was ready with a solid zone defense.

VARSITY SCORERS

SAN RAFAEL—Sovereign 5-0-1-10, MacPhail 6-4-0-16, Mekisich 3-1-1-7, Tovani 1-2-2-4, Haney 3-0-0-6.

COLLEGE TARS UPSET, 69-54 BY SISKIYOUS

Coach Cal Riemcke was scratching his head today.

His College of Marin Tars who this season beat powerful Santa Ana Junior College in a tournament and are the defending champions of the Golden Valley Basketball Conference were drubbed last night in their 1962 conference debut by rookie Siskiyous Junior College, 69-54.

Tonight a no longer overconfident bunch of Tars will play another conference game at Shasta College.

Reimcke said that his team was beaten by "a long trip, over-confidence, lopsided officiating and a spirited Siskiyous team."

Baseball Writers Will Miss Manager Dressen This Year

HANLEY

Baseball writers traveling the National League beat are going to miss Charlie Dressen this year. Dressen was always good for a story. It never was necessary to keep prodding Charlie with questions. Just one would do the trick and it didn't matter what the subject was if it dealt with baseball

The boys in Toronto, where Dressen is temporarily exiled, will find their work easier with Charlie around. He can fill a column of type faster than half a dozen linotype operators working under a pressing deadline.

We never saw Dressen at a loss for words on baseball. There are some who are convinced he is a supreme egotist. Dressen isn't shy about using "I" but somehow we always had the feeling when he was talking that he had a sympathetic understanding of a sports writer's job.

We remember one spring night in the Tepee Room, which is what the Braves call their press room, Dressen had just become Milwaukee's manager and we asked him "what makes a major league manager, Charlie?" It was a good thing we had our pencil and notebook ready because Dressen was off and running immediately. This is what he had to say:

"MANAGING is mainly handling men and handling a pitching staff. But, first, you got to be able to handle yourself. Biggest thing I had to learn was not say a word and not throw anything either in the clubhouse after losing a tough one.

"If you jump a guy after he's fouled up, you'll either kill his spirit or he'll snap back at you. Either way you've created a problem. So I wait until the next day to go over mistakes.

"In my first clubhouse meeting with the Braves I told them I expected them to abide by curfew and training rules but I expected them to take reasonable chances on the field. I believe Jackie Robinson liked me because I gave him his head on the field. First day I replaced Burt Shotton at Brooklyn, Robinson asked me: 'How do you like to play the game?'

"I TOLD HIM: 'When you step up to the plate get back to it as quickly as you can.' Jackie liked to run. Some guys thought he was showing off when he'd steal or take an extra base when we had a big lead but it wasn't so. Robinson, like Ty Cobb, ran to create pressure. By going when it really didn't count, he was investing for the close game when his running and reputation often would force the other club to fumble or throw wild."

Stanford Tests Big Five Muscles

STANFORD (AP) — Stanford tested its Big Five strength last night and California's Bears wish it had never happened.

Cal lost 74-42.

It was the largest point spread in the long series between the two arch rivals.

The Bears host UCLA tonight in one of two Big Five matches on tap. USC seeks to revenge an 85-67 loss to the Huskies at Washington in the other game.

Darrell Sutherland, tall, skinny Stanford guard, surprised the Bears as much as their margin of defeat. Sutherland clicked for five straight field goals from the 20-foot range in the opening first minutes, propelling Stanford to a 15-3 lead.

The Bears never came close thereafter. It was their third straight AAWU defeat. Sutherland's 18-point total and center John Windsor's 20 points paced the Indians to their seventh victory in nine starts.

Cadets Bad Shots Lose to Half Moon In League Game

Poor shooting was blamed for yesterday's defeat of the San Rafael Military Academy by Half Moon Bay in a Bay Counties League basketball game.

Coach Larry Fulton's Cadets went down in flames 61-53, with the coast town team dominating throughout. Except for Cadet Jim Sulgar and Terry Hoffman "we did not shoot well," said Fulton. Sulgar scored a high of 18 points and Hoffman, also good on defense, scored nine points. Dave Kerr was the San Rafael team's outstanding defender.

San Anselmo Club

The San Anselmo Merchants semi-professional basketball team will clash with the Spiders of San Francisco tomorrow at the Marin team's Memorial Park in San Anselmo at 1 p.m., reported Hub manager Pete Maggi.

Nation's Top Grid Pros Battle Tomorrow

A crowd of 65,000 or more is anticipated, in addition to nation-wide television except for a local blackout.

Kickoff time is 1 p.m., Pacific Standard Time.

Pacing the West are Johnny Unitas, star in last year's Pro Bowl clash, and Bart Starr, ace for the champion Green Bay Packers.

The East's attack will include Y. A. Tittle of Giant fame and Milt Plum, also a quarterback, from Cleveland.

The team rosters on both sides read like a who's who in football, with most of the top players active in the sport today.

Both coaches said they had easy sledding getting ready for the big game.

Housewives Become Black Ball Athletes

By PAUL MILLER

Question—what are jacks and jills, Friday night leftovers, sleepers, solo flighters and alley kats?

Answer—they are names given bowling leagues by a group of congenial, attractive, young to middle aged housewives in Marin County who once or more times a week become black-ball athletes.

Nearly 1,000 women make up bowling leagues in the county. All the morning leagues are strictly for ladies, and at night the ladies join their husbands in what are called "mixed leagues." The imaginative league names are represented at the county's four bowling establishments—Nave Lanes, 5800 Redwood Highway, Ignacio; Greenbrae Lanes, 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae; and Marin Bowl, Third Street and Grand Avenue, and Country Club Bowl, 88 Vivian Way, both in San Rafael.

All the women questioned about their reasons for bowling in the daytime agree that the foremost attraction for the sport is a nursery for children from five months to seven or eight years, provided by all four county lanes. The other aspects of the sport are of course attractive they admit, but without the free baby sitter, none of them would even be possible.

Nave Lanes nursery, overseen by Mrs. Helen Young of Novato, is open daily from 9 to 5. She takes care of some 300 youngsters a week. Some mornings 30 to 40 youngsters are in the nursery at a time—and during Wednesday morning, the week's biggest league day for women, most of the youngsters stay in the nursery from 9:30 until 11:30, or noon.

"I don't mind it," says patient Mrs. Young. "Thursdays are really the hardest. That's when we have mostly babies. My mother comes in to help me change them."

It costs the lady athletes about $1.60 a week to bowl league games, plus $1.75 annual fee required for membership in the Women's International Bowling Congress. The actual league bowling fee is $1.35. But 15 cents is added for the secretary of the league who has the complex job of keeping records, and 10 cents or more may be added for seasonal prizes.

Free lessons are given women and youngsters by most of the lanes. For example, Jack Valle, manager of Nave Lanes gives instruction at women's classes Friday mornings.

"It's amazing to see the improvement of these ladies," says Valle. "Some at first are even afraid to pick up a ball. But later, even though their scores are not so high, they nevertheless have the attitude of a semi-professional bowler."

About a third as many women bowl in all-gal leagues at night at Nave, and it is about the same way at the other lanes. At night and weekends the gals are in the mixed leagues. For example, about 200 women bowl at Greenbrae in day leagues and the same number at Country Club. More than 100 bowl in all-women leagues at night at Country Club. Marin Bowl is more of a free-bowling establishment. Twenty-eight women bowl in day leagues there and more in mixed leagues.

Mrs. Petie Cox of Black Point is one of the ladies that bowl in a day league called the "Alley Kats." She explained that a group of girls that are usually already friends decide to form a team, then approach a local business to sponsor them. Mrs. Cox is a member of a San Rafael restaurant team, "The Chateau." Her teammates are from Marinwood, San Rafael and San Quentin. The ladies became friends when they formerly worked together.

A member of a team formed of a group of women who reside near each other in Loma Verde is Mrs. Charles Brauntz and are also in the "Alley Kats." She has been bowling about five years, has a 144 average and a high game of 223. At the other side of the skill scales are women who have a 100 average, have been bowling a year, and became league bowlers just about the day after their instruction concluded.

Although the ladies take their scores and league standings seriously, "they are congenial, and opponents will watch another's style and form and help correct it if she wants," said Mrs. Brauntz.

Owners of Nave Lanes, William Nave Sr., and sons Bill, Rich and Bob Nave share much enthusiasm for the game itself. But the sons are better business men and football players than they are bowlers.

Bowling is becoming more and more a family sport, "and that's what our place is meant to be—a place for family recreation," says Bill.

From the size of the invasion on bowling by the boss of most households bowling lanes will have no other choice.

WILD PITCH — Actually this lady — one of nearly 1,000 women league bowlers in Marin — is pitching. But what she has thrown, probably for a strike, is a bowling ball. Independent-Journal photographer Bob Hax captured these candid shots of lady bowlers in the Wednesday morning "Alley Kats" league at Nave Lanes in Ignacio. Some 96 women were bowling in 24 lanes for two and one half hours.

Top Woman Bowler Says Sport Even Includes A Little Romance

By OSCAR FRALEY

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—There's no reason in the world why a woman can't be every bit as good as a man on a bowling alley, little Sylvia Wene asserts, because the ladies have a pair of built-in prerequisites.

"Timing and rhythm are the two biggest factors in bowling well," she points out. "Where most men try to overpower the ball, women just naturally have those two most necessary traits."

Sylvia, who is only four feet, 11 inches tall, can speak with authority because she undoubtedly can beat the majority of men who fancy themselves as bowlers.

Proof of this is that, at the moment, she is one of the leaders among the 16 finalists in the 21st annual All-Star Tournament at Miami Beach convention hall. If you want more proof, it's there.

The black-haired mite from Philadelphia is the only woman with three sanctioned 300 games; the only woman to bowl perfect games in the All-Star run by the bowling proprietors of America and the world's championship to boot; has a record 206 three-year average and holds the record of 11 series of 700 pins or better in tournament play.

DEAD AIM

The smiling 114-pounder has dead aim on the $5,000 first prize in the current All-Star, which ends today, as she shoots for her third crown. In 1955 she was the first to dethrone Marian Ladewig and she repeated in 1960 by edging past Miss Ladewig by a scant 37 pins.

"The pressure's on," she said as she surveyed the scoreboard listing the 16 finalists out of 144 starters who hailed from 45 states and Puerto Rico. "Now we go head and head until each finalist has met every other survivor and then the one-two finalists bowl head and head for the title."

It's a grind, Sylvia nodded, but she "wouldn't be doing anything else in the world."

"You can make a fine living as a bowling professional," admitted the 32-year-old Sylvia, who rides around in a Cadillac from one end of the country to the other, "but you have to live the game and love to travel."

In explanation of that statement, consider that Sylvia travels 100,000 miles a year. This includes playing in some 15 tournaments and giving anywhere from 100 to 200 exhibitions. Her job as a clinician for A.M.F. has taken her into every state, including Hawaii, as well as to Greenland and Newfoundland.

Twice elected woman bowler of the year, Miss Wene started bowling at 17 when she went to a bowling lane with her brother and sister.

WANTED 200

"I wanted to bowl 100 after rolling only 96 in my first game," she recalls. "Then, when I hit 100, I wanted to bowl 200."

New she "sells" bowling to other women.

"It's wonderful recreation and a fine sport for women," she says. "It's healthy exercise and, on top of that, it's slenderizing. What more does a woman want?"

Romance, maybe?

"Sure, but when the girls go bowling with their husband or boy friends, they should be sure he knows what he's doing when he tries to teach them. The best way is to take lessons from an instructor. Then there is no reason why they can't bowl right along with the men, at least over a short span of games."

Bowling Scramble For Much Cash Involves 16 Pros

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The scramble for the $15,000 men's championship in the 21st All-Star Bowling Tournament is shaping up as a battle between the slenderest and the heftiest stars in big time bowling.

Dick Weber, the 124-pound St. Louis sharpshooter, led the 16-man field today after 12 of 16 rounds with a 241-13 Petersen point total. Dick Hoover, the 235 pound star of the St. Louis Falstaffs, trails him by only 45 pins.

Roy Lown of El Paso, Tex., was in third place nearly eight points behind Hoover. Under the Petersen point system, which has governed this event for all of its 21 years, a bowler gets one point for every game won and one point for every 50 pins knocked down.

BOWLING SOCIETY — In the old days housewives belonged to sewing societies. Within the informal bowling society of Marin women is a league called "Gutter Society," named after a portion of the bowling lane where the ball too often rolls. These ladies take scores and standings seriously, but they also remain friends.

THE TWIST — Mrs. Rosalie Minchall bowling for Womack's Variety Store of Novato in the "Alley Kat" women's league at Nave Lanes in Ignacio demonstrates how to twist legs, hand, and mouth to make that ball clobber the pins. Here Mrs. Minchall throws a spare.

Housewives Become Black Ball Athletes

By PAUL MILLER

Question—what are jacks and jills, Friday night leftovers, sleepers, solo flighters and alley kats?

Answer—they are names given bowling leagues by a group of congenial, attractive, young to middle aged housewives in Marin County who once or more times a week become black-ball athletes.

Nearly 1,000 women make up bowling leagues in the county. All the morning leagues are strictly for ladies, and at night the ladies join their husbands in what are called "mixed leagues." The imaginative league names are represented at the county's four bowling establishments—Nave Lanes, 5800 Redwood Highway, Ignacio; Greenbrae Lanes, 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae; and Marin Bowl, Third Street and Grand Avenue, and Country Club Bowl, 88 Vivian Way, both in San Rafael.

All the women questioned about their reasons for bowling in the daytime agree that the foremost attraction for the sport is a nursery for children from five months to seven or eight years, provided by all four county lanes. The other aspects of the sport are of course attractive they admit, but without the free baby sitter, none of them would even be possible.

Nave Lanes nursery, overseen by Mrs. Helen Young of Novato, is open daily from 9 to 5. She takes care of some 300 youngsters a week. Some mornings 30 to 40 youngsters are in the nursery at a time—and during Wednesday morning, the week's biggest league day for women, most of the youngsters stay in the nursery from 9:30 until 11:30, or noon.

"I don't mind it," says patient Mrs. Young. "Thursdays are really the hardest. That's when we have mostly babies. My mother comes in to help me change them."

It costs the lady athletes about $1.60 a week to bowl league games, plus $1.75 annual fee required for membership in the Women's International Bowling Congress. The actual league bowling fee is $1.35. But 15 cents is added for the secretary of the league who has the complex job of keeping records, and 10 cents or more may be added for seasonal prizes.

Free lessons are given women and youngsters by most of the lanes. For example, Jack Valle, manager of Nave Lanes gives instruction at women's classes Friday mornings.

"It's amazing to see the improvement of these ladies," says Valle. "Some at first are even afraid to pick up a ball. But later, even though their scores are not so high, they nevertheless have the attitude of a semi-professional bowler."

About a third as many women bowl in all-gal leagues at night at Nave, and it is about the same way at the other lanes. At night and weekends the gals are in the mixed leagues. For example, about 200 women bowl at Greenbrae in day leagues and the same number at Country Club. More than 100 bowl in all-women leagues at night at Country Club. Marin Bowl is more of a free-bowling establishment. Twenty-eight women bowl in day leagues there and more in mixed leagues.

Mrs. Petie Cox of Black Point is one of the ladies that bowl in a day league called the "Alley Kats." She explained that a group of girls that are usually already friends decide to form a team, then approach a local business to sponsor them. Mrs. Cox is a member of a San Rafael restaurant team, "The Chateau." Her teammates are from Marinwood, San Rafael and San Quentin. The ladies became friends when they formerly worked together.

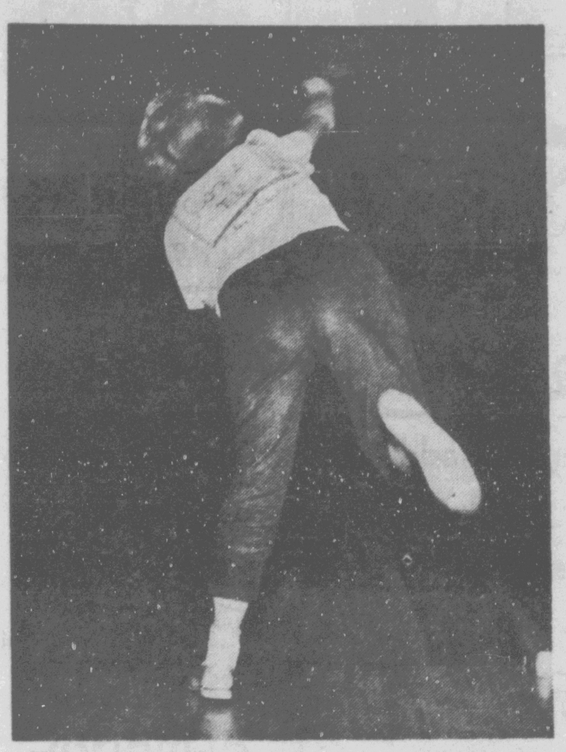
A member of a team formed of a group of women who reside near each other in Loma Verde is Mrs. Charles Brauntz and are also in the "Alley Kats." She has been bowling about five years, has a 144 average and a high game of 223. At the other side of the skill scales are women who have a 100 average, have been bowling a year, and became league bowlers just about the day after their instruction concluded.

Although the ladies take their scores and league standings seriously, "they are congenial, and opponents will watch another's style and form and help correct it if she wants," said Mrs. Brauntz.

Owners of Nave Lanes, William Nave Sr., and sons Bill, Rich and Bob Nave share much enthusiasm for the game itself. But the sons are better business men and football players than they are bowlers.

Bowling is becoming more and more a family sport, "and that's what our place is meant to be—a place for family recreation," says Bill.

From the size of the invasion on bowling by the boss of most households bowling lanes will have no other choice.



WILD PITCH — Actually this lady — one of nearly 1,000 women league bowlers in Marin — is pitching. But what she has thrown, probably for a strike, is a bowling ball. Independent-Journal photographer Bob Hax captured these candid shots of lady bowlers in the Wednesday morning "Alley Kats" league at Nave Lanes in Ignacio. Some 96 women were bowling in 24 lanes for two and one half hours.

Top Woman Bowler Says Sport Even Includes A Little Romance

By OSCAR FRALEY

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—There's no reason in the world why a woman can't be every bit as good as a man on a bowling alley, little Sylvia Wene asserts, because the ladies have a pair of built-in prerequisites.

"Timing and rhythm are the two biggest factors in bowling well," she points out. "Where most men try to overpower the ball, women just naturally have those two most necessary traits."

Sylvia, who is only four feet, 11 inches tall, can speak with authority because she undoubtedly can beat the majority of men who fancy themselves as bowlers.

Proof of this is that, at the moment, she is one of the leaders among the 16 finalists in the 21st annual All-Star Tournament at Miami Beach convention hall. If you want more proof, it's there.

The black-haired mite from Philadelphia is the only woman with three sanctioned 300 games; the only woman to bowl perfect games in the All-Star run by the bowling proprietors of America and the world's championship to boot; has a record 206 three-year average and holds the record of 11 series of 700 pins or better in tournament play.

DEAD AIM

The smiling 114-pounder has dead aim on the $5,000 first prize in the current All-Star, which ends today, as she shoots for her third crown. In 1955 she was the first to dethrone Marian Ladewig and she repeated in 1960 by edging past Miss Ladewig by a scant 37 pins.

"The pressure's on," she said as she surveyed the scoreboard listing the 16 finalists out of 144 starters who hailed from 45 states and Puerto Rico. "Now we go head and head until each finalist has met every other survivor and then the one-two finalists bowl head and head for the title."

It's a grind, Sylvia nodded, but she "wouldn't be doing anything else in the world."

"You can make a fine living as a bowling professional," admitted the 32-year-old Sylvia, who rides around in a Cadillac from one end of the country to the other, "but you have to live the game and love to travel."

In explanation of that statement, consider that Sylvia travels 100,000 miles a year. This includes playing in some 15 tournaments and giving anywhere from 100 to 200 exhibitions. Her job as a clinician for A.M.F. has taken her into every state, including Hawaii, as well as to Greenland and Newfoundland.

Twice elected woman bowler of the year, Miss Wene started bowling at 17 when she went to a bowling lane with her brother and sister.

WANTED 200

"I wanted to bowl 100 after rolling only 96 in my first game," she recalls. "Then, when I hit 100, I wanted to bowl 200."

New she "sells" bowling to other women.

"It's wonderful recreation and a fine sport for women," she says. "It's healthy exercise and, on top of that, it's slenderizing. What more does a woman want?"

Romance, maybe?

"Sure, but when the girls go bowling with their husband or boy friends, they should be sure he knows what he's doing when he tries to teach them. The best way is to take lessons from an instructor. Then there is no reason why they can't bowl right along with the men, at least over a short span of games."

Bowling Scramble For Much Cash Involves 16 Pros

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The scramble for the $15,000 men's championship in the 21st All-Star Bowling Tournament is shaping up as a battle between the slenderest and the heftiest stars in big time bowling.

Dick Weber, the 124-pound St. Louis sharpshooter, led the 16-man field today after 12 of 16 rounds with a 241-13 Petersen point total. Dick Hoover, the 235 pound star of the St. Louis Falstaffs, trails him by only 45 pins.

Roy Lown of El Paso, Tex., was in third place nearly eight points behind Hoover. Under the Petersen point system, which has governed this event for all of its 21 years, a bowler gets one point for every game won and one point for every 50 pins knocked down.

Love Wins Over Heredity

KENNETH KELLEY
Fitting or not . . .

No Marriage Test May Cost Some Inheritance

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Kenneth Kelley's getting married in April—probably without taking the "marriage fitness" tests ordered in his heredity-conscious father's will.

The Air Force lieutenant and his financee, Susan Miles, are willing but there is considerable doubt the tests will be ready.

"We'll go ahead and get married anyway," says Susan, 19, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Miles of Rancho Cordova.

Unanswered was the question of whether Kenneth, 21, will lose much of his share of his father's $175,000 estate if he marries before the tests have been formulated.

Dr. Eric Gardner of Syracuse University, head of a committee of scientists named to conduct the tests, says "Kenneth will get a substantial inheritance anyway, whether he takes the tests or not. The trust fund he will get if he takes the tests is a small but incentive reward."

Exact terms of the bequest have been withheld pending probate of the will of Dr. Truman Lee Kelley, who died May 2. But this much is known: Dr. Kelley, co-author of the Stanford Achievement Tests and a firm believer in selective breeding for humans, set up two "eugenics trust funds" in his will.

His two sons, Kenneth and Kalen, would share in one of the trusts on the basis of their scores in mental-physical-character tests to be taken by them and their brides.

The other trust was to finance an educational campaign to improve the human race by selective breeding.

COUPLE IS WED FOR 50 YEARS

To mark their 50th wedding anniversary a party for Mr. and Mrs. Maurice St. Gaudens of 69 Marina Boulevard, San Rafael, will be given Thursday night at St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco.

The party will be given by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice St. Gaudens Jr., also of San Rafael.

St. Gaudens and his son are manufacturing jewelers, with an office in San Francisco.

Dinner will follow a social hour to begin at 6 p.m., young St. Gaudens said. Also planning to attend the fete is a daughter of the elder St. Gaudens, Mrs. William Gee of Pasadena.

The elder St. Gaudens was born in Paris and met his future wife in New York, where they were married.

They came to San Francisco in 1916 and moved to Marin in 1942. He is 73 and she is 72. Besides their son and daughter they also have five grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Guide Dogs Group To Meet Monday

Annual meeting of the contributing membership of Guide Dogs for the Blind will be held at the school in San Rafael on Monday.

The program will be opened at 11:30 a.m. by William F. Johns, executive director, who will sum up the school's activities over the past year. Johns' report will be followed by the yearly report given by the board of directors.

Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton of Santa Barbara will be installed as president succeeding Robert H. Schnacke of San Francisco.

New Cancer Chairman Is Named For County

John T. Schmitz of San Rafael, office manager for Pacific Mutual Insurance Co. in San Francisco, has been named chairman of the 1962 Cancer Crusade in Marin County.

Schmitz resides at 44 Maplewood Drive, San Rafael.

The appointment was announced by Dr. John H. Manwaring of Ross, president of the Marin County branch of the American Cancer Society.

"There is a genuine urgency in this year's drive. As more and more leads are being discovered, the need for research funds is growing. Every dollar contributed brings us one step closer to finding a cure for cancer," Schmitz said.

Schmitz is to attend a regional meeting of the American Cancer Society Tuesday in San Jose. Attending with him will be Mrs. Clarence Lesko, residential chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Ward, Kentfield chairman; and Harry J. Mack, executive director in Marin.

Savings, Loan Unit Approved For Novato

Novato will have its own savings and loan institution within one year according to a decision handed down this week by the State Division of Savings and Loan.

The commission has approved the petition of seven Novato and Marin County investors for formation of Novato Savings and Loan Assn., to be operated at or near the corner of Grant Avenue and Highway 101.

DENIED

Denied were the applications of Ross Valley Savings and Loan Assn. of San Anselmo and Home Mutual Savings and Loan Assn. of San Francisco for branch offices in Novato.

The incorporation and selection of management of the Novato association is still subject to approval by the savings and loan commissioner. The order requires the new association be federally insured and begin operations within one year.

DIRECTORS

Directors are John J. Angeloni, Everett Pozzi, J. B. Rice, Gordon Walker and Dr. Ralph J. Weseman, all of Novato, and John S. Russell of Kentfield and Andrew Kopperud of San Rafael. Both Angeloni and Pozzi are members of the Novato City Council.

Hearings for the applications were held Oct. 26 last year in San Francisco.

The applications for branch offices were turned down on the basis that when Novato Savings and Loan Assn. qualifies to do business, the area will be adequately served.

The commission in November denied applications of Novato Savings and Loan and Ross Valley Savings and Loan on the basis Novato was sufficiently served by the four institutions in the rest of the county.

San Rafael Votes To Amend Parking

Prompted by parking congestion in the new apartment districts of East San Rafael, the San Rafael Planning Commission yesterday moved to ammend city off-street parking requirements for future apartment construction.

Present requirements call for new or remodeled apartments to provide one parking space per apartment, irrespective of size.

The new ordinance, if approved, will call for one parking space for studio apartments, one and one-half spaces for one and two bedroom apartments and two parking spaces for apartments of three or more bedrooms.

Mention of a possible rush for building permits before such an ordinance is adopted brought Commissioner Charles J. Hendrickson to say, "Even if several hundred units slip by first, it will be a drop in the bucket compared to what will be built in the future."

The motion to amend the ordinance was by Elmer Welcher and seconded by Hendrickson. The ordinance would apply city-wide.

Planning commission interest in street parking stemmed from a recent study of the new apartment districts in East San Rafael along San Rafael Canal.

Commissioners found that a large number of apartments had residents with two cars and others were found with one or two cars and a boat trailer.

Welcher said that out of a given 264 apartments in East San Rafael, none were studio apartments, 30 per cent were one bedroom, 65 per cent were two bedroom and only 5 per cent were three bedroom or larger.

He said requiring one and one-half spaces per two and three-room apartment would solve 95 per cent of the problem.

East won the first two heart tricks and switched to the jack of clubs. South stepped up with the ace of clubs, drew three rounds of trumps and then looked unhappy.

There was good reason to look unhappy, for West had discarded the eight of diamonds on the third trump.

West managed to complete his high-low on the next play, a diamond, thus showing an even number of cards in the suit. (With an odd number, West would have played his diamonds from the bottom up instead of first high and then low.)

Armed with this information, East ruffed the third round of diamonds with the jack of trumps. He then led another heart to force out declarer's last trump.

South still had two losing clubs in his hand and had to go down one trick.

OF COURTESIES: The customary exchange of courtesies then followed.

"Why didn't you bid three notrump?" South asked his partner. "Ten ice-cold tricks even if you never get the king of hearts!"

It was true. North should have jumped to two notrump at his second turn. The actual jump to three diamonds made it very awkward for South.

North had his answer ready. "Why didn't you make four spades?" he demanded. "Just lead a low trump instead of starting with the tops."

Also true. After winning the third trick with the ace of clubs, South should lead the seven of spades from his hand. Dummy's trumps stop a heart return. Declarer can handle any return, can draw the rest of the trumps and can then safely run the diamonds.

As usual, each overlooked his own mistake and thought only of his partner's. Where else but the bridge table could this possibly happen?

Unanswered was the question of whether Kenneth, 21, will lose much of his share of his father's $175,000 estate if he marries before the tests have been formulated.

Dr. Eric Gardner of Syracuse University, head of a committee of scientists named to conduct the tests, says "Kenneth will get a substantial inheritance anyway, whether he takes the tests or not. The trust fund he will get if he takes the tests is a small but incentive reward."

Exact terms of the bequest have been withheld pending probate of the will of Dr. Truman Lee Kelley, who died May 2. But this much is known: Dr. Kelley, co-author of the Stanford Achievement Tests and a firm believer in selective breeding for humans, set up two "eugenics trust funds" in his will.

His two sons, Kenneth and Kalen, would share in one of the trusts on the basis of their scores in mental-physical-character tests to be taken by them and their brides.

The other trust was to finance an educational campaign to improve the human race by selective breeding.

COUPLE IS WED FOR 50 YEARS

To mark their 50th wedding anniversary a party for Mr. and Mrs. Maurice St. Gaudens of 69 Marina Boulevard, San Rafael, will be given Thursday night at St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco.

The party will be given by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice St. Gaudens Jr., also of San Rafael.

St. Gaudens and his son are manufacturing jewelers, with an office in San Francisco.

Dinner will follow a social hour to begin at 6 p.m., young St. Gaudens said. Also planning to attend the fete is a daughter of the elder St. Gaudens, Mrs. William Gee of Pasadena.

The elder St. Gaudens was born in Paris and met his future wife in New York, where they were married.

They came to San Francisco in 1916 and moved to Marin in 1942. He is 73 and she is 72. Besides their son and daughter they also have five grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Guide Dogs Group To Meet Monday

Annual meeting of the contributing membership of Guide Dogs for the Blind will be held at the school in San Rafael on Monday.

The program will be opened at 11:30 a.m. by William F. Johns, executive director, who will sum up the school's activities over the past year. Johns' report will be followed by the yearly report given by the board of directors.

Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton of Santa Barbara will be installed as president succeeding Robert H. Schnacke of San Francisco.

New Cancer Chairman Is Named For County

John T. Schmitz of San Rafael, office manager for Pacific Mutual Insurance Co. in San Francisco, has been named chairman of the 1962 Cancer Crusade in Marin County.

Schmitz resides at 44 Maplewood Drive, San Rafael.

The appointment was announced by Dr. John H. Manwaring of Ross, president of the Marin County branch of the American Cancer Society.

"There is a genuine urgency in this year's drive. As more and more leads are being discovered, the need for research funds is growing. Every dollar contributed brings us one step closer to finding a cure for cancer," Schmitz said.

Schmitz is to attend a regional meeting of the American Cancer Society Tuesday in San Jose. Attending with him will be Mrs. Clarence Lesko, residential chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Ward, Kentfield chairman; and Harry J. Mack, executive director in Marin.

Savings, Loan Unit Approved For Novato

Novato will have its own savings and loan institution within one year according to a decision handed down this week by the State Division of Savings and Loan.

The commission has approved the petition of seven Novato and Marin County investors for formation of Novato Savings and Loan Assn., to be operated at or near the corner of Grant Avenue and Highway 101.

DENIED

Denied were the applications of Ross Valley Savings and Loan Assn. of San Anselmo and Home Mutual Savings and Loan Assn. of San Francisco for branch offices in Novato.

The incorporation and selection of management of the Novato association is still subject to approval by the savings and loan commissioner. The order requires the new association be federally insured and begin operations within one year.

DIRECTORS

Directors are John J. Angeloni, Everett Pozzi, J. B. Rice, Gordon Walker and Dr. Ralph J. Weseman, all of Novato, and John S. Russell of Kentfield and Andrew Kopperud of San Rafael. Both Angeloni and Pozzi are members of the Novato City Council.

Hearings for the applications were held Oct. 26 last year in San Francisco.

The applications for branch offices were turned down on the basis that when Novato Savings and Loan Assn. qualifies to do business, the area will be adequately served.

The commission in November denied applications of Novato Savings and Loan and Ross Valley Savings and Loan on the basis Novato was sufficiently served by the four institutions in the rest of the county.

San Rafael Votes To Amend Parking

Prompted by parking congestion in the new apartment districts of East San Rafael, the San Rafael Planning Commission yesterday moved to ammend city off-street parking requirements for future apartment construction.

Present requirements call for new or remodeled apartments to provide one parking space per apartment, irrespective of size.

The new ordinance, if approved, will call for one parking space for studio apartments, one and one-half spaces for one and two bedroom apartments and two parking spaces for apartments of three or more bedrooms.

Mention of a possible rush for building permits before such an ordinance is adopted brought Commissioner Charles J. Hendrickson to say, "Even if several hundred units slip by first, it will be a drop in the bucket compared to what will be built in the future."

The motion to amend the ordinance was by Elmer Welcher and seconded by Hendrickson. The ordinance would apply city-wide.

Planning commission interest in street parking stemmed from a recent study of the new apartment districts in East San Rafael along San Rafael Canal.

Commissioners found that a large number of apartments had residents with two cars and others were found with one or two cars and a boat trailer.

Welcher said that out of a given 264 apartments in East San Rafael, none were studio apartments, 30 per cent were one bedroom, 65 per cent were two bedroom and only 5 per cent were three bedroom or larger.

He said requiring one and one-half spaces per two and three-room apartment would solve 95 per cent of the problem.

HOW TO PLAY

Seems Like Other Fellow's Mistakes Worse Than Own

It probably happens only at the bridge table: the other fellow's mistake always looks worse than your own.

East won the first two heart tricks and switched to the jack of clubs. South stepped up with the ace of clubs, drew three rounds of trumps and then looked unhappy.

There was good reason to look unhappy, for West had discarded the eight of diamonds on the third trump.

West managed to complete his high-low on the next play, a diamond, thus showing an even number of cards in the suit. (With an odd number, West would have played his diamonds from the bottom up instead of first high and then low.)

Armed with this information, East ruffed the third round of diamonds with the jack of trumps. He then led another heart to force out declarer's last trump.

South still had two losing clubs in his hand and had to go down one trick.

OF COURTESIES: The customary exchange of courtesies then followed.

"Why didn't you bid three notrump?" South asked his partner. "Ten ice-cold tricks even if you never get the king of hearts!"

It was true. North should have jumped to two notrump at his second turn. The actual jump to three diamonds made it very awkward for South.

North had his answer ready. "Why didn't you make four spades?" he demanded. "Just lead a low trump instead of starting with the tops."

Also true. After winning the third trick with the ace of clubs, South should lead the seven of spades from his hand. Dummy's trumps stop a heart return. Declarer can handle any return, can draw the rest of the trumps and can then safely run the diamonds.

As usual, each overlooked his own mistake and thought only of his partner's. Where else but the bridge table could this possibly happen?

Driving The Family Automobile Is A Privilege, Not A Right

(Q) "Is driving the family car a right or a privilege? My boy is 17. He says he has a right to use our car. We insist that he earn the privilege of driving it. He gets the car only when his homework has been done, and his room cleaned up. He feels badly abused. Should we give in?" R.H.F.

(A) No. don't give in. As I see it, driving is a privilege. Parents should restrict the use of the family car. It is almost their only way to control their older teen-agers. May I suggest another requirement? Make sure your boy always drives carefully. If he is reckless, take away the privilege. We're compiling an awful record of teenage accidents this winter.

(Q) "My son is in the fourth grade. He has always been a good boy. Recently he and his buddies have been extremely interested in dirty stories. They are naive, but think they are being grownup and devilish. My husband says all boys go through periods like this. Is he right? Should I do something drastic?"

Mrs. C.U.

(Q) All boys go through periods of special interest in dirty stories. They say and do nasty things. Let your boy know you disapprove. Don't let him think he is getting by with anything. Have your husband talk with him. But probably drastic action on your part would make matters worse instead of better. With normal luck he'll outgrow this soon.

(Q) "Our daughter is in the eighth grade. A girl in her class tells bad stories about her. The girl is jealous because my daughter is popular and she isn't. How can we stop the nasty gossip?"

K.S.

(A) Talk with your daughter's teachers and counselor. Be sure they understand what is happening. Let them control the situation. The girls who start bad stories suffer more than their victims. Other kids realize that they are not telling the truth, and make life miserable for them.

Envoys Confer On Berlin Crisis

The ambassador, when he came out of the session, was asked how the talk went and replied: "I can't say a thing."

Asked if there would be more meetings, he said: "I anticipate there will be, but no date has been set."

Asked if he were more optimistic, Thompson said: "It is not right to judge these things."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D
Guidance Counselor

Driving The Family Automobile Is A Privilege, Not A Right

(Q) "Is driving the family car a right or a privilege? My boy is 17. He says he has a right to use our car. We insist that he earn the privilege of driving it. He gets the car only when his homework has been done, and his room cleaned up. He feels badly abused. Should we give in?" R.H.F.

(A) No. don't give in. As I see it, driving is a privilege. Parents should restrict the use of the family car. It is almost their only way to control their older teen-agers. May I suggest another requirement? Make sure your boy always drives carefully. If he is reckless, take away the privilege. We're compiling an awful record of teen-age accidents this winter.

(Q) "My son is in the fourth grade. He has always been a good boy. Recently he and his buddies have been extremely interested in dirty stories. They are naive, but think they are being grownup and devilish. My husband says all boys go through periods like this. Is he right? Should I do something drastic?"

Mrs. C.U.

(Q) All boys go through periods of special interest in dirty stories. They say and do nasty things. Let your boy know you disapprove. Don't let him think he is getting by with anything. Have your husband talk with him. But probably drastic action on your part would make matters worse instead of better. With normal luck he'll outgrow this soon.

(Q) "Our daughter is in the eighth grade. A girl in her class tells bad stories about her. The girl is jealous because my daughter is popular and she isn't. How can we stop the nasty gossip?"

K.S.

(A) Talk with your daughter's teachers and counselor. Be sure they understand what is happening. Let them control the situation. The girls who start bad stories suffer more than their victims. Other kids realize that they are not telling the truth, and make life miserable for them.

Envoys Confer On Berlin Crisis

The ambassador, when he came out of the session, was asked how the talk went and replied: "I can't say a thing."

Asked if there would be more meetings, he said: "I anticipate there will be, but no date has been set."

Asked if he were more optimistic, Thompson said: "It is not right to judge these things."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

M W W U J X M B X L R ? — E X W I U A

We Need Problem Solving Before Party Planning

California is soon to supplant New York as the nation's most populous state, with Marin population growing from last year's estimated 148,500 to 368,900 by 1965.

The estimates are the predictions of the usually conservative State Department of Finance. Passing New York is estimated for December, 1962.

What does it mean, aside from more Congressmen to give California a still more dominant representation in Congress?

Governor Brown sees the balance in America swinging Westward; the Age of the Pacific succeeding the Age of the Atlantic. He sees California in its "rightful place on top." Already, he is planning a statewide celebration, come the date.

Growth in population—as we know since the end of World War II—brings many new problems. It calls for careful restudy of planning, and makes industrial growth imperative for the North Bay if we are to meet the changing situation.

The additional thousands predicted for California and for Marin do not come here by our selection or special invitation. They come of their own volition—people of every economic, emotional and educational status.

Besides a percentage of home buyers, there will be others to swell further the steadily increasing welfare loads. We cannot figure any slackening of the caseload even with the distinction of being Uncle Sam's most populous state.

Our school taxes and educational practices are a constant topic of conversation and controversy. As the No. 1 state, we will have the nation's largest school attendance — and already districts are hard put to keep up with demands for new schools and new teachers in an area where the taxload is carried mainly by homeowners.

Our planning commissions are beseiged with requests for variances to zoning codes; a few hundred thousand more residents and the problem will be multiplied manyfold. We have transportation problems now. The influx will not bring a decrease in these. Will our hills and mountains have to be covered with homes to meet housing needs, or will the size of our country lot minimums have to be chopped to make room for people?

The outlook isn't depressing. We've been growing right along; now we're told we can expect even greater growth.

Governor Brown, as the state's titular leader and spokesman is pointing with pride to the outlook and setting tentative plans for a statewide celebration when "Biggest State Day" arrives. But a celebration isn't enough. Brown, and all state, county and city boards and organizations should give as much attention to advance planning on how we can all live here, and seriously and constructively meet the challenge in the myriads of fields and conditions that are imposed by our never-ceasing growth.

With a few of the major problems resolved through the vision and zeal of governmental and civic organizations, there will be some meaning to an observance of California's rise to first state. Otherwise, it looks like a bigger mess than ever before.

THINK TWICE BEFORE YOU KICK

When a pony in Kansas kicked a little boy, his father decided to take quick revenge. He gave the animal a swift kick in return.

The result was disappointing. The man suffered 2 broken toes. Then he found that his son had not been injured after all. Neither was the pony.

Little is solved by being vindictive except to make a bad situation even worse. Vengeance may be momentarily sweet but it leaves a bitter taste.

Worse still, a vengeful person reveals his own immaturity. As Juvenal said centuries ago: "Revenge is the poor delight of little minds."

When those we love suffer unjustly or when we ourselves are treated unfairly, we can easily give in to the human impulse to return evil for evil.

But such provocations likewise present unique opportunities to add a divine note of kindness and restraint to whatever response may be required.

12th Night Burning Of Greens Was Moving Event For Witnesses

I WITNESSED for the first time in my life last Saturday evening the traditional burning of the greens.

It was the 12th night of Christmas ceremony in front of Holy Innocents' Episcopal Church in Corte Madera celebrating the Epiphany, the traditional anniversary of the visit of the three kings to Bethlehem bearing gifts for the Christ Child.

With a background of choir voices, the huge pile of Christmas trees which only days before decorated family households, was ignited sending a huge red and orange flame skyward.

It seemed, as most Christmas festivities are, the biggest delight for the children. Two or three youngsters were perched atop one of the bus shelters across the street. Another was straddling a guide wire to a utility pole, just to be able to see over the crowd.

A few boys were darting around the fire. Young and old alike were standing watching the blaze. The only thing missing, at least from my vantage point was the piney scent of the burning trees. All the smoke seemed to be blowing straight up and I couldn't get that fresh smell of the smoke.

If an event such as that could be described as either a success or failure, that one night would surely be called a great success. Most persons seemed to leave the scene just a little bit happier than when they arrived. I know I was one among those persons.

BACK IN NOVEMBER, the foundation on which the celebrations are held was loosened, but it withstood the tugging and remained. The foundation is the triangle in front of the church in which the trees are burned.

The Corte Madera Park and Recreation Commission recommended to the town council to call a halt to the event so the triangle could be landscaped.

But the council, the town fathers that they are, listened to a plea from Rev. Tod W. Ewald, rector of the church, to keep the 12th night ceremonies alive before they took any action. After listening, the council voted unanimously to reject the park and recreation commission proposal.

So the event will continue. I am glad for that.

DR. JOHN C. SIEMENS, trustee of the Tamalpais High School District board, showed he has a quick sense of humor at the last Tam district board meeting.

It seems of late that many of the women teachers at Drake High School are either resigning or requesting leaves of absence because of pregnancy.

Dr. Siemens told the other trustees that he heard that Drake principal Harold Allison asked one pretty applicant recently how long she intended to teach at Drake.

The answer? "From here to maternity."

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Busterud Won't Try Congress; Will Belotti?

By CHAPIN A. DAY

'CHIP' DAY

San Francisco Assemblyman John A. Busterud, who moved to Santa Rosa last year and indicated he would seek Republican nomination for Congress from this First Congressional District, is writing himself out of the race to unseat Corte Madera's Democratic Clem Miller.

As we get the story (and politics seems to have gone on as usual whether we were writing about it or not) there are two or possibly three main reasons:

1—Although Busterud received a hearty welcome throughout the six county district on his first swing around, on subsequent trips he sometimes got the "who are you?" stare or the "what do you want now?" treatment.

What he wanted, of course, was money financial support. That's mighty hard to come by, especially when persons who give the support worry about the electability of the candidate. What they worried about is reason No. 2.

2—AS WAS inevitable, even though Busterud had actually moved his family, law office and everything to Santa Rosa, he was dubbed a "carpetbagger."

In Marin County, that doesn't sound so bad. The major part of the population either came here from San Francisco or is commuting to work there or is connected directly with the city.

But the farther north you move in the district, the more ominous the term appears—the "big city boy" moving in to run things for the "country hicks." By the time you get up as far as Eureka or Del Norte, the face Busterud isn't a "local boy" loomed as a major political issue, one which Miller's supporters already were exploiting.

3—BUSTERUD MAY seek state office, most likely the post of state treasurer, now held by Democrat Bert A. Betts.

An emerging strategy of the Republicans in California is to attempt to gather a full ticket of strong, young, personable candidates for every state position, except of course secretary of state where they have a strong, old, personable incumbent, Frank M. Jordan.

The idea is that whether the gubernatorial candidate be Richard M. Nixon or someone else, the rest of the ticket should be strong enough to help the candidate rather than try to ride on his coattails.

Busterud seems to fits well into such a program and where his home is makes no difference in a state-wide race.

ALL OF THIS, of course, left the GOP with one less prospective candidate for Congress in the June primary.

It gave encouragement to Don Clausen, Del Norte supervisor, who has not attempted to conceal his interest in the race.

It also may have encouraged Fred Dupuis, twice defeated by Miller but last time by less than one per cent of the vote, to see if three is the charm.

In addition, one report has it that Assemblyman Frank P. Belotti of Eureka is softening in his previously adamant stand against seeking a congressional seat. The report says he no longer says "No," but just smiles. Other reports say he still means No.

Belotti is finishing up 12 years in the Assembly as the Republican representative of highly Democratic Del Norte, Mendocino and Humboldt Counties.

WITH THIS at least partially in mind, Dupius, who is acting chairman of the GOP First Congressional District Committee, has called a meeting of the committee for Saturday, Jan. 27, in Ukiah's Palace Hotel.

At that time the group's executive committee, acting as a nominating committee, will propose a slate of permanent officers. After getting officers, the committee will determine "where we are going from here."

What they mean is, Who have we got who can beat Clem Miller?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Brickbat For Ferry Criticism

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

As an ardent reader of "Marin Magazine" I cannot help but take exception to your editorial "Good Old Days of Ferries Left Much to Be Desired." Brickbats to you for that one.

Yes, I remember Sunday traffic, and backed up traffic did leave much to be desired; and perhaps the fare for an auto ferry was 75 cents or more. But when you say that the ferry shut down during winter storms when the bay was too rough or quit running on foggy nights, I can only guess that you have been listening to "fairy tales."

Course, I may be somewhat prejudiced since Dad worked on the ferries. I can remember 20 years before the ferries stopped running but I cannot remember that Dad or any other ferry boat man ever missed a day of sailing because of fog, storms, or because ferries were out of commission.

Perhaps you do not want ferry service again—I'll hand you a bouquet for having your own opinion. I also hand you a brickbat for writing a misleading editorial which did a great injustice to the ferryboats and their crewmen.

Political Party Platforms Are Mostly Just Humbug

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The congressional Joint Committee on the Disposition of Useless Papers (JCDUP) should have remained in business long enough to deal with the 1960 Democratic presidential platform. It might deal with the 1960 Republican presidential platform, too.

The 1960 Democratic platform would have had prior rights to the committee's attention, however, because the Democrats elected their man in 1960. Their man was Sen. John F. Kennedy. President Kennedy has delivered to a joint session of the Congress his message on the State of the Union.

The message offered the voters a lesson in basic politics. It will be a miracle if the voters learn this lesson. It has been offered to them before by one party and then by another without much effect on the electorate. The lesson is that campaign platforms are mostly humbug.

REPUBLICAN campaign platforms are no better than Democratic campaign platforms. Both parties make platform promises to attract the votes of racial and other pressure groups. On platform promises, the sky is the limit or, maybe, what the traffic will bear.

The Democrats seem to offend more often with these voter-bait promises than do the Republicans. There are reasons for that. First, the Democrats are accustomed to out-promising the Republicans although the Republicans are handy, too, with lip service. Second, the Democrats of late have more often elected their presidential candidates. A presidential candidate who runs on a well-ballyhooed campaign platform and then reneges on major parts of it finds himself in a conspicuous position.

President Kennedy finds himself today in such a position. It is because Kennedy reneged that it seems reasonable to suggest the JCDUP should give its attention to the 1960 Democratic presidential platform. The JCDUP went out of business 10 years ago. Congressmen were reluctant to be known as members of a committee with such a purpose, the disposition of useless papers.

SO, 10 YEARS ago the committee's name was changed. It now is the Joint Committee on Disposition of Executive Papers (JCDEP). More dignified! If the 1960 presidential platform is an executive paper, the next move is up to JCDEP. JCDEP will not move. It is part of the unwritten law of politics that politicians may delude the voters without penalty unless penalty by the voters themselves.

It is a shocking thing that political parties can get away with such humbuggery. They do get away with it, however. So the real shocker in this situation is that U. S. voters are such a meat-headed lot as to accept as valid the promises politicians make to buy votes.

For example: Consider the all-inclusive Democratic platform promises on civil rights. President Kennedy forgot most of those promises in his 1961 message. He forgot again this week. Perhaps politicians like humbug platforms for good reason.

They win elections.

'There Is Always Some New Challenge'

Mrs. Thomas J. Mellon Lives Busy Life By That Philosophy

By PATRICIA ZINN

No answer to an early morning telephone call to 4 Rock Road, Kent Woodlands, means that the lady of the house, Mrs. Thomas J. Mellon, has gotten her husband off to work, her sons off to school, and has started another day of volunteer work.

Currently, she may be found at the United Crusade headquarters where she serves as Bay Area participation chairman, or she may be out doing her stint for Catholic Social Service, Camp Fire Girls, Red Cross or Marin Catholic Mothers' Club. On another occasion as several weeks ago, she could be reached in the kitchen of San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace Hotel wrapping and packaging 175 dozen dishes donated by the hotel to Nazareth House in Terra Linda.

Last year's citation as one of eight outstanding women in Marin by the American Assn. of University Women was the culmination of tireless effort and devotion in volunteer work which, for Mrs. Mellon, began 12 years ago in the kitchen at Marin Catholic High School. Even though her husband, Thomas J. Mellon, who is president and general manager of the Wesix Electric Co. and a San Francisco police commissioner, thinks his wife might have found an easier way to get acquainted than to volunteer to take charge of the food booth for the carnival at the then new Catholic school, this was a job for which his wife had the highest of qualifications.

BORN CULA BUKER in the small railroad town of Valley Falls located between the cities of Atchison and Topeka in Kansas, Mrs. Mellon says, "As far as I knew you didn't do anything but teach school." Thus after graduating from high school she went on to study to become a home economics teacher, first at Baker University in Baldwin City, Kans., and then Kansas State University in Manhattan, where she won her Bachelor of Science degree.

Her first teaching position was at Arkansas City Junior High School at Arkansas City, Kans., where she taught children during the day and adults in the night school. Her experience as a teacher was followed with work in the commercial field when she went with the Kansas Gas and Electric Co. as a home economist to train salesmen and working with the farm bureau around Newton, Kans. Mrs. Mellon would probably have stayed in the Midwest had she not been so bashful in those days.

The impulsive acceptance of the new position was to more than justify itself, for it afforded the young woman from Kansas the opportunity to travel to the West Coast and Hawaii.

FOLLOWING an orientation session in Chicago, she was sent to Seattle, Wash., as a traveling home economist for the Hotpoint Company. In those years the choicest plum for company home economists was an invitation to spend six weeks in Hawaii teaching a cooking school sponsored by the island newspaper, the Honolulu Star Bulletin.

Cula Buker was chosen for the Hawaiian post the following year only to be prevented from going by injuries suffered in an automobile accident. Her decision to go to the islands the following year was a weightier one as she had her choice of going to Hawaii or returning to Chicago as manager of the department. Her decision to go to the islands is significant here because the year was 1941. Cula Buker was among the last group of home economists ever to teach in the cooking schools and among those several who remember Hawaii as it was before Dec. 7, 1941—Pearl Harbor Day. With the sneak attack by the Japanese on Pearl Harbor, the cooking schools were no more. And the islands never the same.

Recalling those six weeks, she remembers most how the people looked for visitors and how on every Thursday, "boat day," they closed their shops and came down to the harbor to extend a royal welcome.

"It was really something and they made you feel like a queen during the days you were there. So much so that I almost stayed on as a home economist with the newspaper rather than return to Chi-

'There Is Always Some New Challenge'

Mrs. Thomas J. Mellon Lives Busy Life By That Philosophy

By PATRICIA ZINN

No answer to an early morning telephone call to 4 Rock Road, Kent Woodlands, means that the lady of the house, Mrs. Thomas J. Mellon, has gotten her husband off to work, her sons off to school, and has started another day of volunteer work.

Currently, she may be found at the United Crusade headquarters where she serves as Bay Area participation chairman, or she may be out doing her stint for Catholic Social Service, Camp Fire Girls, Red Cross or Marin Catholic Mothers' Club. On another occasion as several weeks ago, she could be reached in the kitchen of San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace Hotel wrapping and packaging 175 dozen dishes donated by the hotel to Nazareth House in Terra Linda.

Last year's citation as one of eight outstanding women in Marin by the American Assn. of University Women was the culmination of tireless effort and devotion in volunteer work which, for Mrs. Mellon, began 12 years ago in the kitchen at Marin Catholic High School. Even though her husband, Thomas J. Mellon, who is president and general manager of the Wesix Electric Co. and a San Francisco police commissioner, thinks his wife might have found an easier way to get acquainted than to volunteer to take charge of the food booth for the carnival at the then new Catholic school, this was a job for which his wife had the highest of qualifications.

cago as a resident home economist."

While in Seattle she met a widower with a 9-year-old daughter, Thomas Mellon, who was then sales manager for the Wesix Co.

Thomas Mellon went to Chicago to claim her as his bride and in 1942 the three came to San Francisco. Two sons, Thomas Jr., now a sophomore at the University of San Francisco, and Michael, a senior at Marin Catholic High School, were born before the family came to Marin County. The Mellons moved into their new home in Kent Woodlands 12 years ago this Christmas.

THINGS HAVE not changed too much since that time when daughter, Eileen, entered Marin Catholic High and Mrs. Mellon volunteered for the food booth. With all the high offices she has since held beginning with the presidency of the Marin Catholic Mothers' Club the year following the carnival, the vivacious homemaker still enjoys staff meetings in the kitchen because "everybody is interested in food and we have such wonderful times washing the dishes."

"In fact," says Mrs. Mellon, "when I am too tired to do anything else I get out and cook. This is especially rewarding if you have a family that likes to eat as well as ours does."

Along with the children's activities and those of her own, Mrs. Mellon has also been in step with politics. Her husband has served as campaign chairman for Earl Warren who sought the presidential nomination in 1952 and also as chairman for U. S. Sen. Thomas Kuchel.

"It seems," says Mrs. Mellon, "that we have always been electioneering for Kuchel."

Although politics is not her particular bent, the campaign chairman's wife had such a good time on the Warren presidential train to the Chicago convention in 1952 that she decided "it was all worth it."

As police commissioner Thomas Mellon and his wife are considered part of the "official family" in the city of San Francisco and, through these associations, Mrs. Mellon and Mrs. George Christopher have become good friends. It was, in fact, Tula Christopher who informed Cula Mellon that her name was Greek and meant "Little Christmas" in that language.

IN DISCUSSING the United Crusade Mrs. Mellon is more than enthusiastic as she speaks of the excitement of working in the headquarters and the experience of knowing where every cent of the money goes and how much good a little bit more will do.

Apart from volunteer and political activities, Mrs. Mellon has enjoyed trips with the family, such as the one to Europe three years ago, and visits to Tacoma, cruising up the Canadian River as well as a motor trip through the East and the South. She also likes to sew and be with her three grandchildren, and you may be sure she helped her daughter, now Mrs. John Shea, who this year served as residential chairman for the United Crusade in San Bruno.

Mrs. Mellon continues to look to the future untiringly for she says "There is always some new challenge."

Along with United Crusade the distinguished Marinite has also been active in other causes. On June 1 of 1961, she took office as new state president of the Catholic Conference of Social Work. Also in that year she retired as chairman of the Archbishop's Committee for Catholic Charities.

In 1960 the alumnae chapter of Delta Zeta Sorority named Mrs. Mellon as its "woman of the year." She has also served as director of the Ross Chapter of the Needlework Guild of America.

DESPITE HER extremely heavy schedule of activities in volunteer civic and church work, Mrs. Thomas J. Mellon finds time to enjoy herself working in her kitchen at Kent Woodlands. A former home economist, she whips up a batch of cookies here. "When I am too tired to do anything else, I go out and cook," she says. (Independent-Journal photo)

Why The Tossing Of The Dough?

Just about everyone who has ever visited a pizza parlor knows that the tossing of the dough is an essential part of the making of the Italian delicacy?

But why must the dough be tossed?

The reason, says Mrs. Camillo Russo, owner of Nello's Pizza House along Highway 101 in Marin, is that the toss-and-catch method is the easiest and most efficient way of shaping the dough.

Not only does it shape the circle, but it also serves to stretch the center of the circle thinner and provide the thicker crust around the edges that is part of the good pizza pie.

Pizza makers will also tell you that the throwing of the dough into the air results in a fluffier, lighter texture for the pizza.

There's no particular trick to tossing the pizza, Mrs. Russo says. About three or four feet into the air suffices.

Mrs. Russo has been watching pizza tossers in action since she was a child. Her father, Edward Lupo, is the owner of Lupo's, one of San Francisco's best-known pizza emporiums. He used to toss pizzas in his native Naples and in New York City. And he still performs the trick expertly today.

THE MIXING AND SHAPING of the dough completed, the other tasty ingredients properly spread and sprinkled across the face of the pie, Mrs. Camilla Russo now inserts it into the oven at her Nello's Pizza House on Highway 101 for baking. Daughter of a restaurant man who got his start in Naples, Mrs. Russo comes by her flair for pizza naturally.

MRS. RUSSO not only likes to prepare pizzas, but she also likes to eat them. The proof of the pizza, she believes, is in the eating. And this one passes the taste test. Pizza, Mrs. Russo says, is intended to be eaten with the hands—not a fork. (Independent-Journal photos)

Graduation: A Happy Time For Little Kathi

Marindale School is the recipient of help from a number of Marin organizations including United Cerebral Palsy of Marin whose pool of equipment such as walkers, wheelchairs and crutches, is available to the school. United Cerebral Palsy also aids with the speech therapy program and pays for film processing for medical records. Funds for United Cerebral Palsy will be solicited in Marin County this coming Monday night when the organization stages its annual "53-Minute March" to the homes of Marin. (Photos by Ken Molino)

C. FREDERICK FAUDE shows you two former possessions of novelist Booth Tarkington that have been assigned to his Sausalito gallery at 585 Bridgeway by Newhouse Galleries Inc. of New York for display. Paintings Once Prized By Famed Novelist Now In Marin

". . . It is with reluctance that I see these paintings go," wrote novelist and art fancier Booth Tarkington back in October of 1936 of the sale of two of his favorite paintings, a portrait of Anne Dormer by Tilly Kettle and a portrait of Mrs. Joseph Grate by Sir Martin Archer Shee.

Today those two paintings hang side by side in a Marin art gallery—the C. Frederick Faude Galleries at 585 Bridgeway in Sausalito.

The gallery specializes in fine art such as the two masterpieces and is open to the public only by appointment.

PROPRIETOR Faude is especially proud of the two former Tarkington possessions.

His copy of the letter written by Tarkington from his home at Kennebunkport, Maine, indicates that the novelist's parting with the paintings, with regret, was part of a transaction with Newhouse Galleries in New York City in which the writer was acquiring some older English portraits more in keeping with his Tudor period study.

Wrote Tarkington in part:

". . . I paid $7,000 to Mr. Vose during the winter of 1930-31 for the Tilly Kettle, and $4,250 for the Shee in the autumn of 1932; and it is with reluctance that we see these pictures go.

"Vose told me of an exhibition he had when he placed these two at the opposite ends of a line of darker portraits and 'made a big hit' with 'em . . . Ever since we've had them, when people come to our house, about 99 per cent of them look blankly at Gainsboroughs, Reynoldses, Lawrences, Stuarts and Raeburns, and then brighten up enthusiastically before both the Tilly Kettle and the Shee to exclaim, 'Oh I like this one.' "

Artist Tilly Kettle (1740-1786) was a contemporary of Gainsborough. His portrait of Anne Dormer is regarded not only as one of the finest examples of Kettle's work, but also as embodying all the fin-

". . . I paid $7,000 to Mr. Vose during the winter of 1930-31 for the Tilly Kettle, and $4,250 for the Shee in the autumn of 1932; and it is with reluctance that we see these pictures go.

"Vose told me of an exhibition he had when he placed these two at the opposite ends of a line of darker portraits and 'made a big hit' with 'em . . . Ever since we've had them, when people come to our house, about 99 per cent of them look blankly at Gainsboroughs, Reynoldses, Lawrences, Stuarts and Raeburns, and then brighten up enthusiastically before both the Tilly Kettle and the Shee to exclaim, 'Oh I like this one.' "

Artist Tilly Kettle (1740-1786) was a contemporary of Gainsborough. His portrait of Anne Dormer is regarded not only as one of the finest examples of Kettle's work, but also as embodying all the finest qualities of the noted school of English artists headed by Gainsborough. His subject was an unusually beautiful English girl. Classic drapery of the dress and transparent scarf were painted with exceptional sublety, and the illusion of depth and reality of form that Kettle attained in the painting has won acclaim. Soft browns and tans were used in the landscape background and color was purposely subdued throughout the painting.

ARTIST KETTLE was born in London, son of a coach painter. He studied in the Duke of Richmond's Gallery and at an academy in St. Martin's Lane and became a regular exhibitor at the Incorporated Society of Artists.

After practicing portrait painting for some time in London, he went to the East Indies and in four years amassed a fortune. He returned to London in 1776 and exhibited at the Royal Academy. He died in 1786 enroute to the East Indies.

Sir Martin Archer Shee lived from 1769 to 1850 and painted in the period immediately following the Gainsborough school. His portrait of Mrs. Joseph Grate has been described as "a particularly beautiful one, both because of the charm of the young lady who is the subject and also because of the skillful handling of the face and features. It is strikingly real and alive . . ."

The heavy plush velvet hanging with its rich wine shades provides the background for the head. A touch of contrasting blue offers a pleasing color touch.

Sir Martin Archer Shee was born in Dublin but moved to London as a youth. He studied in the schools of the Royal Academy and in 1789 exhibited his first two pictures. During the next 10 years he steadily increased his practice and in 1799 he was chosen as an associate of the Royal Academy. Two years later he was made a royal academician.

ON THE DEATH of Thomas Lawrence in 1830, Shee was chosen president of the Royal Academy, and shortly thereafter he was knighted. He continued to paint until his death.

The Shee painting, like the Tilly portrait, is described as being "in perfect condition."

The two paintings have been consigned by Newhouse Galleries Inc., and its president, B. M. Newhouse, to Faude for display.

ALTHOUGH IT WAS one of the first classrooms to be built at Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley, dating back to the early part of this century, the print shop, nevertheless, is an orderly and neat operation as it has been run by Jules Chourre for the past 33 years. Students have a variety of equipment upon which they can learn the craft of printing. The facilities are used by students of all three Tamalpais District schools. (Photo by Bob Prather)

A Master Teaches The Printing Trade

He doesn't even know how many printers he's trained for the trade. But that's surely excusable, for he's been at it for 42 years.

Jules Chourre, master teacher and printer par excellence, is an institution in the Tamalpais Union High School District. He's been teaching printing there for the past 33 years. Before that, he taught in Coalinga two years and in Alameda County seven years.

Chourre is a graduate cum laude from the University of California and holds a Master of Arts degree from San Francisco State. His actual experience in the trade is as impressive, for he's spent many summers as a master printer, working aboard Matson liners most of those summers. And with his assistant, John Schroeder, he runs a tight, productive shop at Tamalpais High School. Real pros, both of them.

This, then, is the kind of background he brings to his teaching of Tamalpais District students. The Tam print shop, a large production center for the district as well as an instructional classroom, also serves Drake and Redwood in both capacities.

Chourre's classes are of two kinds: Industrial arts printing and vocational printing. The former, an introductory year, is open to all interested students, though Chourre stresses the need for satisfactory performance in English as a requisite.

After a year of introduction, students seriously interested in the printing field may enroll in the vocational printing program and take three hours per day if they can work it into their schedule while meeting other requirements for graduation. That usually means they cannot begin the vocational program until they are juniors.

Students who successfully complete the vocational program are recommended by Chourre to employers. Recommendation usually results in from one to two years of credit toward apprenticeship, depending on the student and on the phase of printing he enters.

ALTHOUGH Chourre can't rightly calculate the number of students he has trained for the trade, he is certain that at least 75 per cent of his former students have gone into printing. He hears from them occasionally, and their work is spread far and wide.

In the industrial arts course, students learn the fundamentals of typesetting, beginning with handset printing from the traditional case. They work at proofreading, bringing into work their command of English or, if it is lacking, working on English at Chourre's direction.

One of the most prominent displays in the shop is the huge, much-thumbed copy of Webster's unabridged. Chourre's own thumb is often jerked in its direction when a student has a question of language.

BEGINNING students also get instruction and practice on the press. During their initial year, they are restricted to the hand-fed snapper, a 10 by 15 platen.

Those who survive and are still serious about printing branch out into many areas of the trade during the vocational printing classes.

First of all, they're put on the Linotype machine. They get involved in the variety of job work done by the shop for the schools — advanced composition. They continue

It's National Printing Week—

NATIONAL PRINTING WEEK will be observed by the graphic arts industry in Marin County and throughout the nation, starting tomorrow. The observance coincides annually with the Jan. 17 birthdate of Benjamin Franklin, one of the most famous printers of them all. The purpose of the observance, originated by the International Assn. of Printing House Craftsmen and now supported by all major facets of the printing industry, is to call attention to and foster high craftsmanship in graphic arts. Members of the industry in the Bay Area plan an extensive observance that includes a graphic arts clinic to be held in San Francisco. The story of the printing instruction program in the Tamalpais District high schools appearing on these pages of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine is in keeping with the observance. working the platen but may also advance to the automatic Kluge, the vertical Miehle, the flat bed, and the Miehle Cylinder. Only the best move to the shop's ultimate in presses, the Heidleberg.

Composition, proofreading, typesetting and press work are not the whole instructional story. Vocational students get an introduction to bookbinding, for the requirements of the Tam District schools in grade books, hall passes, attendance records, brochures, and all kinds of form pads are myriad.

Likewise they learn how to run the automatic stapler, how to use the jogger, the folder, the cutter, the paper drill, the lead saw, the precision proof press, plastic bindery machine, and the broach (to make cross rules, an important job in printing school forms).

They learn a little about journalistic printing, for the three school newspapers are printed in the shop. They learn a little about art printing, for the literary magazines are also printed there.

The students do not learn stereotyping or engraving, but they must learn to use the finished engravings and matrix impressions, because these materials are used in programs, newspapers, magazines, and brochures.

AND FINALLY, they learn about warehousing for Chourre's operation is a central purchasing, storehouse, and dispensing agency for all paper products to all the schools in the district, a significant economy operation inaugurated years ago.

These are the skills, most of them measurable, to which the Tam District printing students are exposed.

What is not measurable, as in all education, are the attitudes, the discipiines, the prides, and the philosophies given the students by Jules Chourre and his assistant, John Schroeder, who was a student of Chourre, Tam class of 1932.

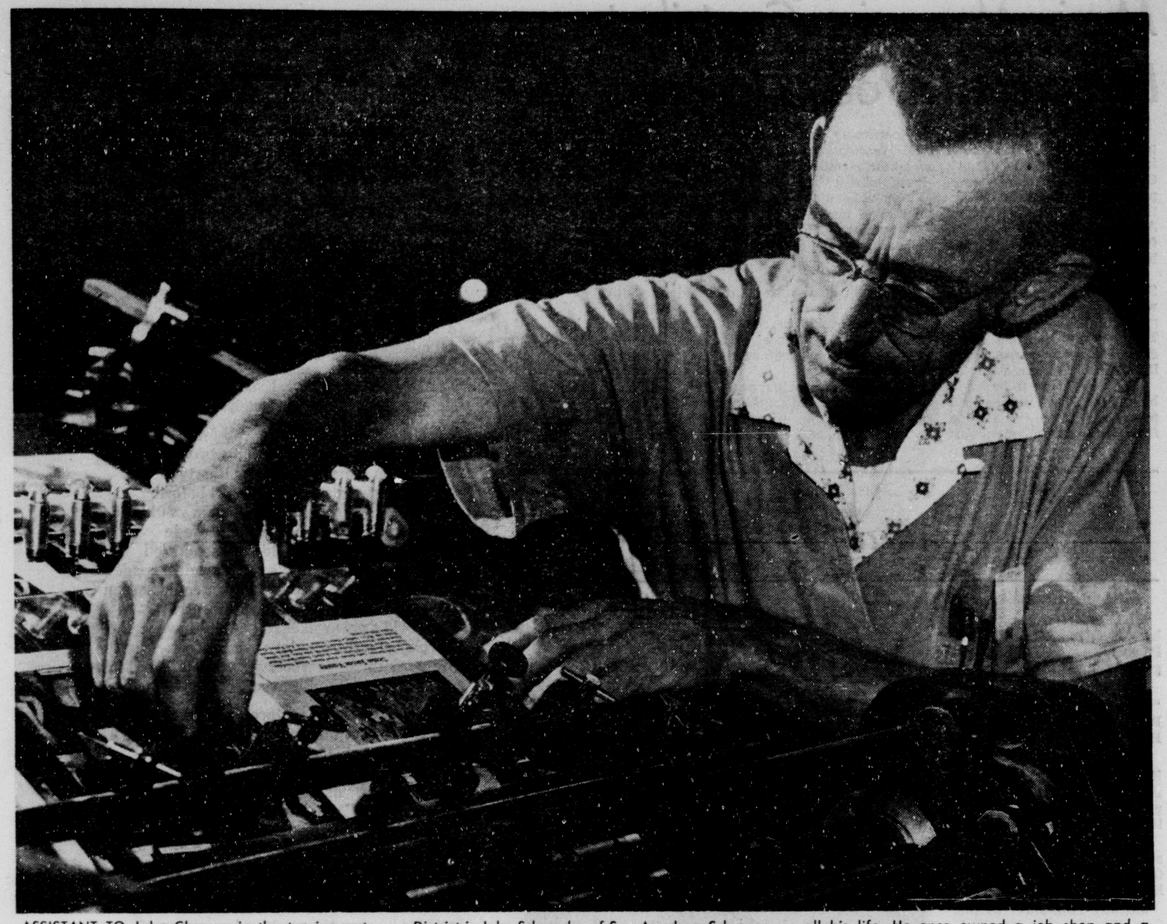
THE MAN IN CHARGE of the printing instruction program at Mill Valley's Tamalpais High School is Jules Chourre, master teacher and master printer. For 33 years he has headed the program. And, he says, he has turned out more printers for the trade than he can calculate. Here he checks proof of the work of some of his students and he seems to be pleased with their progress. (Photos by Bob Prather)

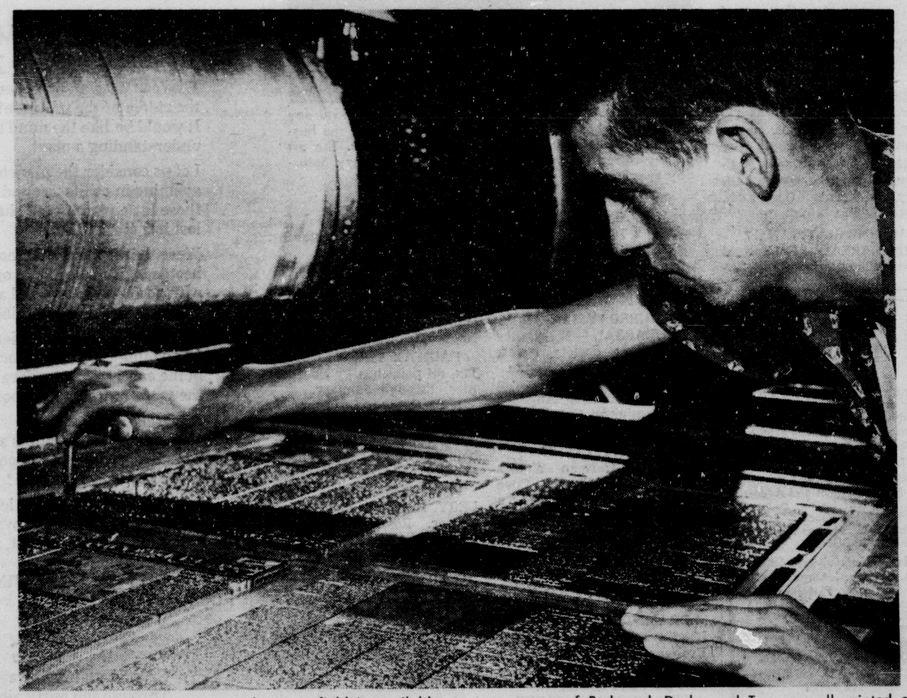


ASSISTANT TO Jules Chourre in the turning out of printed forms and other materials for use by the three high schools of the Tamalpais School District is John Schroeder of San Anselmo. Schroeder was one of Chourre's printing students, graduating from Tam in 1933, and has been a printer all his life. He once owned a job shop and a small newspaper, but went to work for his old mentor several years ago.

A Master Printer Teaches The Trade

TAMALPAIS HIGH senior Russell Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Murphy of Mill Valley, hopes to enter the printing trade after graduation. Here he works at the linotype machine in the Tam print shop, setting type. He is in his third year in the printing instruction program at the school. After graduation he will work at linotype machines identical to this one.

THE ELEMENTS of bookbinding are one of the many phases of training offered at the Tamalpais High School print shop. At work stapling a basketball program on a power stapler is Jerry Lapour, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lapour and a member of Tam's vocational printing class.



A VARIETY of work experience in the press field is available to students enrolled in the classes conducted at Tamalpais High School's print shop. Among other activities, the school newspapers of Redwood, Drake and Tam are all printed on the flatbed press. Here senior Fred Foss, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Foss of Mill Valley, locks newspaper forms onto the press.

Marin Magazine Contributors Eligible For Poetry Contest

Marin poets whose work appeared during 1960 and 1961 in the Marin Magazine's Poet's Corner are eligible to compete for the Ad Schuster-Arthur Price Newspaper Poetry Awards being offered for the first time by the Ina Coolbrith Circle.

The awards honor Ad Schuster and Arthur R. Price, who for years conducted poetry columns in the Oakland Tribune and the San Francisco Examiner respectively. Both men are deceased.

The awards are to be made biennially. There will be cash prizes of $10, $5 and $3 plus five honorable mentions. Prize-winning non-members will receive complimentary one-year memberships in the Ina Coolbrith Circle.

Any resident of California may send poems of his own authorship which were published in any California newspaper during 1960 and 1961, providing the poems had not been published elsewhere previously.

Two poems will be considered from any one poet, but only one prize will be awarded to an individual.

Clippings of the actual news publication or photostat thereof are acceptable with the author's name, address, newspapers name and date of publication. Poets are urged to leave a generous margin or attach their work to a larger sheet of paper to avoid mishap in the evaluation of the work. A self-addressed postal card should be enclosed for acknowledgement of receipt of entries—a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return of poems.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

SONNETS TO (ST.) PETER BEHR

(Inspired by his war-cry against "atheists" in the Marin Magazine's "Poets Corner" and other utterances.)

When in the paper lately I have come
On careful words by Supervisor Behr
To disassociate himself from some
When I have seen the opportunist haste
With which he seized the first, too-easy chance
To slap a civil freedom leader's face
And add a new jig to the Birchers' dance;
And when of "graven images conceived
By atheists" he writes (non-sequiturs)
And "overthrow" to force "God's" being believed,
All mixed with "peace" and "freedom"—then I curse:
No self-insuring "liberal" politician
Helps peace by pitting "atheist" and "Christian."

What are these words, this call for "victory,"
This cry for "overthrow," but words of war?
There is no hope for peace or liberty
In such old words so often heard before.
Such are the words that once again would hide
The peoples' cost in blood of a crusade
Beneath some flag of gold, still sanctified
With talk of "God." Let's call a spade a spade:
The day is done when "holy" war could screen
The march of empire, or its slow retreat.
The world's new-wakened peoples have well seen
The clay of our own idol's graven feet.
These are the ones who will "out-laugh, out-love!" . . .
And, with or without Christ, set free the Dove!

"Leave atheists their catacombs and caves,"
You rant—as if the world knew not full well
Which Godly chief alone it is who waves
His nation to start shoveling for hell.
You prate of "nascent nations soon to soar"
In "open skies" of God-created calm;
But just which atheist nation loosed the roar
Of Hiroshima and the napalm bomb?
I grant you, Sir, according to your light
Some good intent in warbling of love
And peace, to counteract the "shelter" fright
Instilled by men the world grows weary of.
But damning "unbelievers"—in our time—
Can only speed the war god's final crime.

A Yarn About Naval Warfare In Pacific

ESCAPE FROM JAVA by Harvey Haislip, Doubleday and Co., 334 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

When novelist Harvey Haislip isn't writing about the American Revolution, he is writing about modern naval warfare. This time he has written a novel of sea fighting in the Pacific during those dark days of early World War II that followed the disaster at Pearl Harbor.

More specifically, it is the story of the courageous fight against hopeless odds staged by a makeshift fleet of U. S., Dutch and British ships against powerful Japanese sea forces and transports in the Java Sea.

Haislip builds his story around one of those U. S. vessels, the destroyer Banning, and the men aboard her, with special attention to the skipper, Capt. Jim Bradford.

Let it be acknowledged that Haislip is no Herman Wouk in either characterizations or motivations. His principals are not presented in any great depth. Then, after granting this serious weakness, let it also be noted that Haislip still writes an entertaining if hardly exceptional yarn. If you enjoy a novel that is interesting without being significant, entertaining without being stimulating, then you won't be disappointed in this one. This is particularly true if you are a "fan" of navy stories. Haislip, a retired sea captain, is especially adept at describing battle action and at picturing life aboard ship by men who must spend long periods away from land and even longer periods separated from their loved ones.

HEAVEN IS HERE AND OTHER VERSE by Thomas G. Canlett, Vantage Press, New York, $2. Reviewed by Matthew Hansen.

We might ask, Where is Heaven? Where is it and and where is here? Here is wherever I (ego) am, and Heaven should be where I am. Now the book that mostly lays on the shelf says: "Ye must be born again." The old man must be an enemy to himself or he cannot enter into Heaven and Heaven cannot enter into him.

In the book under review, Heaven is not considered from this standpoint. The author's ideal of Heaven is mostly, if not altogether, temporal and seems to be best expressed in the poem designated by the same title as that of the book, for nature is expressed. Indeed, we must say the visible heavens declare the "glory of God," and so likewise does the whole creation. However, it failed to do Belezebub any good in Eden, or make a saint of Hitler in the magnificent mountain scenery where he spent much time.

The author's poems are easy to understand, free from pedantry, and he seems to have quite a little well-placed contempt for high-hat, swell-chested poetry that delivers material which cannot be understood. However, it must be said that for the heaven of preachers and worshipers and for the Heaven which God has tried to bring us, he has much more contempt than reverence, although, alas, his descriptions often hit the nail on the head.

KILLING A MOUSE ON SUNDAY by Emeric Pressburger, Harcourt, Brace and World Inc., 180 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

A Hungarian-born writer educated in Czechoslovakia and Germany and now living in England has authored this novel about present-day Spain with a central character living in exile in France. To complete his unorthodox background, Pressburger has been known in the past as a writer and producer of motion pictures, not as a novelist.

Fascism, Franco style, has held the Spanish people in its iron grip so long now that it has come to be regarded by much of the world as something almost respectable when it is thought of at all. Among those who will never accept it, however, are those Spaniards who fled for their lives, often leaving behind them loved ones dead or imprisoned, to live in exile across the border in France.

Pressburger writes about Manuel Artiguez, one of this number, an exile who has frequently crossed the border into Spain at the risk of his life to harass the Fascists with raids but who in his late 50s has grown tired of the hero's role. Now he faces a challenge to risk his life once more against stacked odds.

Another man who must make a big decision is the priest, Father Francisco. Should he risk the ire of the Spanish police to save the life of a man who is an avowed enemy of the clergy?

Pressburger's narrative technique of shifting his viewpoint among several characters is disconcerting at first. But once the reader becomes accustomed to it, it becomes a most effective device in his hands. And the story is told with great understanding for the participants in the drama, and with mounting suspense. It is, it seems to us, a novel that has not been accorded the attention and acclaim it deserves.

"THE CAT," painted by an unknown American artist in about 1840, is one of the inclusions in "101 Masterpieces of American Primitive Paintings" just published by Doubleday and Co. The paintings are taken from the collection of Edgar William and Bernice Chrysler Garbisch. Reproductions are in full color.

STEREO NOTES

18th Century Music Spirit Recreated In Oboe Album

By JOHN SUNIER

ANDRE LARDROT, OBOE, with Chamber Orchestra of the Vienna State Opera conducted by Felix Prohaska in "Concerto For Oboe and Strings by Cimarosa, "Concerto in B Flat Major For Oboe and Strings" by Albinoni, "Concerto in G Minor For Oboe and Strings" by Handel, and "Concerto in C Major For Oboe and Orchestra" by Haydn. (Vanguard Stereolab VSD-2036).

Titled "The Virtuoso Oboe," this album re-creates the musical spirit of the 18th century, when the oboe and related woodwind instruments were delighted in for their individuality, unique and distinctive timbres, brilliance and range of expression, and had a host of concerti composed for them to "show off" in.

The Cimarosa work has become one of the most popular concerti for wind instrument and orchestra. It was freely adapted from the composers piano music by Arthur Benjamin (b.1893). It is a lovely work, sharing with the Handel concerto on the same disc, the typical late 17th-century formal layout of slow-fast-slow-fast movements

The earliest work represented is the Albinoni concerto, which reminds one of his fellow-Venetian, Vivaldi. Lardrot's performances are impeccable and the Viennese orchestra turns in superb readings of the four works.

Margaret Page Hood does a masterful job of capturing the salty flavor of life in the Penobscot islands off Maine's coast, and that alone is sufficient to justify the reading of one of her suspense or mystery novels. Furthermore, she offers you one of the most human and most believable sleuths in present-day fiction in Deputy Sheriff Gil Donan.

This time Donan is confronted with the murder of Fox Island's No. 1 citizen, lusty, tough, shrewd Andy Bruce. At times the mystery itself seems to become lost in the author's involvement with her setting and her colorful Yankee characters. But so engrossing are these elements of the story that it is difficult to fault her there.

Here is the women's rebuttal to the lady-debunkers who so delight in taking apart the female, foible by foible — blameless males who point blameless fingers at every feminine trait. But Dorothy Roe's book is much more than that.She does not waste valuable pages pointing back at the men, but rather gets down to simple facts of that which affect American womanhood.

Dorothy Roe is in a non-scientific sense as well qualified as anyone to write such a book, as she is a happy wife and mother, now grandmother, who has been a member of the working press all her adult life. Formerly a general assignment reporter for New York newspapers, she spent some 20 years as women's editor for the Associated Press, interviewing thousands of women and writing on every subject affecting or interesting the female species. Since her AP retirement she is a syndicated columnist writing women's features.

It is, then, no accident that this is a lively little volume, written directly, and quoting liberally from her interviews with persons Miss Roe came to know through her working years. Best of all, here is a book that touches the problems of the roles a woman is called upon to play in today's world, written in a style peeled of pseudo-scientific nonsense.

Miss Roe begins with the contention that "Most of the troubles of modern women are created by men . . . " and goes on to tell how, why and what the results have been. Perhaps a bit over-optimistic, he is nevertheless a refreshing spokesman for the feminine contingent. What a conversation piece this small volume makes.

A Book Just Right For Hands Of Small Readers

THE LITTLE BOOK by Beatrice Schenck de Regniers, Henry Z. Walck. Reviewed by Claudia Royal.

"Read this one," said 3-year-old Michael as he selected "The Little Book" at his neighbor's house. He held the little book in his little hands and pointed to the little girl as she "goes for a walk." Each time "the little girl walks on," Michael turned the page, and listened as she said "Hi!"

The little girl saw a cow, a rooster, other animal creatures and finally a little boy. Each time Michael seemed to go along with her.

ONE SNAIL AND ME by Emilie Warren McLeod, Atlantic Monthly Press Book, 32 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Dick Steinheimer.

An amusing book for children who are learning to count. It is amply illustrated. The book is about a bathtub, one snail, turtles, ducks, seals, whales, kangaroos, bears, alligators, hippopotamuses, minnows and Me. A five year old deemed it "Good!" (which is high praise from him).

The illustrator doing this wild zoo was Walter Lorraine.

Marin Magazine Contributors Eligible For Poetry Contest

Marin poets whose work appeared during 1960 and 1961 in the Marin Magazine's Poet's Corner are eligible to compete for the Ad Schuster-Arthur Price Newspaper Poetry Awards being offered for the first time by the Ina Coolbrith Circle.

The awards honor Ad Schuster and Arthur R. Price, who for years conducted poetry columns in the Oakland Tribune and the San Francisco Examiner respectively. Both men are deceased.

The awards are to be made biennially. There will be cash prizes of $10, $5 and $3 plus five honorable mentions. Prize-winning non-members will receive complimentary one-year memberships in the Ina Coolbrith Circle.

Any resident of California may send poems of his own authorship which were published in any California newspaper during 1960 and 1961, providing the poems had not been published elsewhere previously.

Two poems will be considered from any one poet, but only one prize will be awarded to an individual.

Clippings of the actual news publication or photostat thereof are acceptable with the author's name, address, newspapers name and date of publication. Poets are urged to leave a generous margin or attach their work to a larger sheet of paper to avoid mishap in the evaluation of the work. A self-addressed postal card should be enclosed for acknowledgement of receipt of entries—a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return of poems.

A SHORT REPORT ON THE NATIVITY SUBJECT. The response to my article on the Nativity has been overwhelming. Many people have stopped in and offered donations to help purchase a replacement for the Chamber's now worn Christmas Scene. Some donations have come by mail with heart warming letters. As yet, my all out drive is not under way, but as soon as the year-end inventories and necessary reports are finished you can expect action and you will be kept informed.

To dispell any doubt about my article, I bear no malice against the A.C.L.U. My point was made toward those who use the A.C.L.U. as a protective cloak to make an issue of something that can do no wordly good, something that is hurting absolutely no one. These minority A.C.L.U members are hurting the name and obscuring the worthy cause for which the organization stands, by leaving a connotation of unfriendliness in the minds of the readers.

BACK TO STEREO HI-FI. As of last Monday, January 8th, FM Station KPEN is now broadcasting full time in Multiplexed Stereo; that is, any time you tune in KPEN, 101.3 on your dial, you can listen to a stereo broadcast if your set is properly equipped. Radio Station KBAY, 104.5 on your dial, has announced that they are beginning their stereo FM broadcasts. If you haven't heard an FM stereo broadcast, visit our Hi Fi Stereo store and we will be happy to demonstrate.

You will find some new products in our store. The newest addition to our lines are the ROBERTS TAPE RECORDERS. They feature stereo record and stereo play with built-in speakers and amplifiers; thus, making them a complete stereo system. The workmanship is exceptionally good.

Careless Indulgence In Hobbies Can Kill

A high percentage of the nearly four million deaths and disabling injuries in American homes each year can be traced to carelessness while indulging in hobbies around the house.

Most of these accidents occur in and around the workshop and the garden, two places which ordinarily contribute so much to enjoyment of leisure. In order to help cut the toll from home hobbies, here is a safety list:

Make certain there is plenty of room for equipment, tools . . . and the hobbyist. Cramped quarters lead to accidents.

Keep workshops free of litter at all times. Floors, particularly, should be cleared of scrap, oil, shavings and any obstacles that could cause tripping or uncertain footing, or fire. Sweep or mop up refuse as you go along and dispose of it safely in metal covered containers.

Keep all tools in a specific, planned, easily identified place when not in use . . . and replace them after use.

Disconnect all power tools when not in use and padlock them if possible. Workshops with power tools should be definitely out of bounds to children unless an adult is on hand to supervise.

Locate power outlets convenient to the user—but out of the easy reach of children.

Paints, Acids and other inflammables should be locked safely away in clean, dry cupboards when not in use . . . and should be non-accessible to children.

Any loose clothing—particularly neckties, flowing or loose sleeves and cuffs, should be removed or rolled up before workshop tools are used. Clothing caught in power tools can cause fatal accidents.

Goggles should always be used when there is danger of flying splinters or metal shavings.

Never reach toward cutting edges of any tool until power has been turned off and the machine stopped. Don't stand in front of a power saw when cutting.

Read all directions — and follow them. Never try to experiment by using tools for jobs which they were not designed to do.

Take advantage of every built-in safeguard which comes with your equipment—and add more if necessary.

Be certain to have immediately available—in the workshop itself—a first-aid emergency kit.

Garden tools, no less than workshop tools, should have a specific place for storage when not in use . . . and should always be returned to that place after use.

All power tools—such as mowers—have safe operating instructions attached. These should be read and not deviated from. In particular, children and pets should be kept safely out of the area where power mowers are being used.

All insecticides, fertilizers and the like should be locked in storage compartments when not in use — and guarded when in use. Poisons should be plainly labeled with written or printed instructions listing specific antidotes.

Home painting is best done from secure, wide, stable scaffolds. If you MUST try to paint from a ladder, make certain it is secure . . . and that children and others are kept well away from the area—out of range of paint buckets or spray, brushes or other tools.

First-aid emergency kits should be kept handy—in a nearby garage or brought to a porch or veranda station—when ANY outdoor hobby or work is to be performed.

Louvers Liven Bedroom Decor

A big idea for remodeling a small bedroom to make it more convenient and attractive is the use of sliding or folding louver doors of ponderosa pine on closets. Both types provide a full view of the closet but take up little or no usable room when open.

Louver doors of ponderosa pine provide the additional advantage of continuous air circulation in closets, eliminating mustiness.

Meanwhile, the beauty of the louvers—stained to bring out the natural wood grain, or painted to harmonize with decor — adds richness and warmth to the room.

HEAVEN IS HERE AND OTHER VERSE by Thomas G. Canlett, Vantage Press, New York, $2. Reviewed by Matthew Hansen.

We might ask, Where is Heaven? Where is it and and where is here? Here is wherever I (ego) am, and Heaven should be where I am. Now the book that mostly lays on the shelf says: "Ye must be born again." The old man must be an enemy to himself or he cannot enter into Heaven and Heaven cannot enter into him.

In the book under review, Heaven is not considered from this standpoint. The author's ideal of Heaven is mostly, if not altogether, temporal and seems to be best expressed in the poem designated by the same title as that of the book, for nature is expressed. Indeed, we must say the visible heavens declare the "glory of God," and so likewise does the whole creation. However, it failed to do Belezebub any good in Eden, or make a saint of Hitler in the magnificent mountain scenery where he spent much time.

The author's poems are easy to understand, free from pedantry, and he seems to have quite a little well-placed contempt for high-hat, swell-chested poetry that delivers material which cannot be understood. However, it must be said that for the heaven of preachers and worshipers and for the Heaven which God has tried to bring us, he has much more contempt than reverence, although, alas, his descriptions often hit the nail on the head.

KILLING A MOUSE ON SUNDAY by Emeric Pressburger, Harcourt, Brace and World Inc., 180 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

A Hungarian-born writer educated in Czechoslovakia and Germany and now living in England has authored this novel about present-day Spain with a central character living in exile in France. To complete his unorthodox background, Pressburger has been known in the past as a writer and producer of motion pictures, not as a novelist.

Fascism, Franco style, has held the Spanish people in its iron grip so long now that it has come to be regarded by much of the world as something almost respectable when it is thought of at all. Among those who will never accept it, however, are those Spaniards who fled for their lives, often leaving behind them loved ones dead or imprisoned, to live in exile across the border in France.

Pressburger writes about Manuel Artiguez, one of this number, an exile who has frequently crossed the border into Spain at the risk of his life to harass the Fascists with raids but who in his late 50s has grown tired of the hero's role. Now he faces a challenge to risk his life once more against stacked odds.

Another man who must make a big decision is the priest, Father Francisco. Should he risk the ire of the Spanish police to save the life of a man who is an avowed enemy of the clergy?

Pressburger's narrative technique of shifting his viewpoint among several characters is disconcerting at first. But once the reader becomes accustomed to it, it becomes a most effective device in his hands. And the story is told with great understanding for the participants in the drama, and with mounting suspense. It is, it seems to us, a novel that has not been accorded the attention and acclaim it deserves.

18th Century Music Spirit Recreated In Oboe Album

By JOHN SUNIER

ANDRE LARDROT, OBOE, with Chamber Orchestra of the Vienna State Opera conducted by Felix Prohaska in "Concerto For Oboe and Strings by Cimarosa, "Concerto in B Flat Major For Oboe and Strings" by Albinoni, "Concerto in G Minor For Oboe and Strings" by Handel, and "Concerto in C Major For Oboe and Orchestra" by Haydn. (Vanguard Stereolab VSD-2036).

Titled "The Virtuoso Oboe," this album re-creates the musical spirit of the 18th century, when the oboe and related woodwind instruments were delighted in for their individuality, unique and distinctive timbres, brilliance and range of expression, and had a host of concerti composed for them to "show off" in.

The Cimarosa work has become one of the most popular concerti for wind instrument and orchestra. It was freely adapted from the composers piano music by Arthur Benjamin (b.1893). It is a lovely work, sharing with the Handel concerto on the same disc, the typical late 17th-century formal layout of slow-fast-slow-fast movements

The earliest work represented is the Albinoni concerto, which reminds one of his fellow-Venetian, Vivaldi. Lardrot's performances are impeccable and the Viennese orchestra turns in superb readings of the four works.

Margaret Page Hood does a masterful job of capturing the salty flavor of life in the Penobscot islands off Maine's coast, and that alone is sufficient to justify the reading of one of her suspense or mystery novels. Furthermore, she offers you one of the most human and most believable sleuths in present-day fiction in Deputy Sheriff Gil Donan.

This time Donan is confronted with the murder of Fox Island's No. 1 citizen, lusty, tough, shrewd Andy Bruce. At times the mystery itself seems to become lost in the author's involvement with her setting and her colorful Yankee characters. But so engrossing are these elements of the story that it is difficult to fault her there.

Here is the women's rebuttal to the lady-debunkers who so delight in taking apart the female, foible by foible — blameless males who point blameless fingers at every feminine trait. But Dorothy Roe's book is much more than that.She does not waste valuable pages pointing back at the men, but rather gets down to simple facts of that which affect American womanhood.

Dorothy Roe is in a non-scientific sense as well qualified as anyone to write such a book, as she is a happy wife and mother, now grandmother, who has been a member of the working press all her adult life. Formerly a general assignment reporter for New York newspapers, she spent some 20 years as women's editor for the Associated Press, interviewing thousands of women and writing on every subject affecting or interesting the female species. Since her AP retirement she is a syndicated columnist writing women's features.

It is, then, no accident that this is a lively little volume, written directly, and quoting liberally from her interviews with persons Miss Roe came to know through her working years. Best of all, here is a book that touches the problems of the roles a woman is called upon to play in today's world, written in a style peeled of pseudo-scientific nonsense.

Miss Roe begins with the contention that "Most of the troubles of modern women are created by men . . . " and goes on to tell how, why and what the results have been. Perhaps a bit over-optimistic, he is nevertheless a refreshing spokesman for the feminine contingent. What a conversation piece this small volume makes.

THE LITTLE BOOK by Beatrice Schenck de Reginiers, Henry Z. Walck. Reviewed by Claudia Royal.

"Read this one," said 3-year-old Michael as he selected "The Little Book" at his neighbor's house. He held the little book in his little hands and pointed to the little girl as she "goes for a walk." Each time "the little girl walks on," Michael turned the page, and listened as she said "Hi!"

The little girl saw a cow, a rooster, other animal creatures and finally a little boy. Each time Michael seemed to go along with her.

Some Tips On Floor Painting

Time was when only beat-up floors were painted.

But now it is fashionable to paint floors for contrast or to give a lift to a tired, dull room. One is likely to see the best of floors wearing a coat of paint in the newest, gayest decorator colors.

Old floors may require preparation before they are painted. Cracks should be filled in. Caulking compounds are available for that purpose and their oil ingredients permit the part that is exposed to air to harden as it protects and keeps elastic the compound not on the surface.

You can't sand over these floor fillings so it best to sand in advance of the floor treatment.

MANY PEOPLE prefer a professional sander. The job is dirty, tiresome, noisy and unpleasant and amateurs are likely to give up in despair or do a slipshod job. Sanding machines may be rented at hardware, lumber and general stores and the rental agent will give instructions on the operation of the machine and use of sandpaper.

You may prefer to paint your floors without any sanding. It has been done successfully and works out best when a darker color is used over existing paint or when the floors have not been previously painted.

But paint experts advise that it is always better to prepare a surface that is to be painted, for more satisfactory paint adhesion.

Floors should be painted when the room is relatively cool and dry.

You can mix your own paint colors or have them mixed. If you want a color that is not available in the paint store, tubes of oil color may be added to white in varying amounts and combinations until you evolve the desired color.

BLUE FLOORS and green floors were highlighted at a recent decorating show and were a definite asset to the Early American furnishings in the rooms.

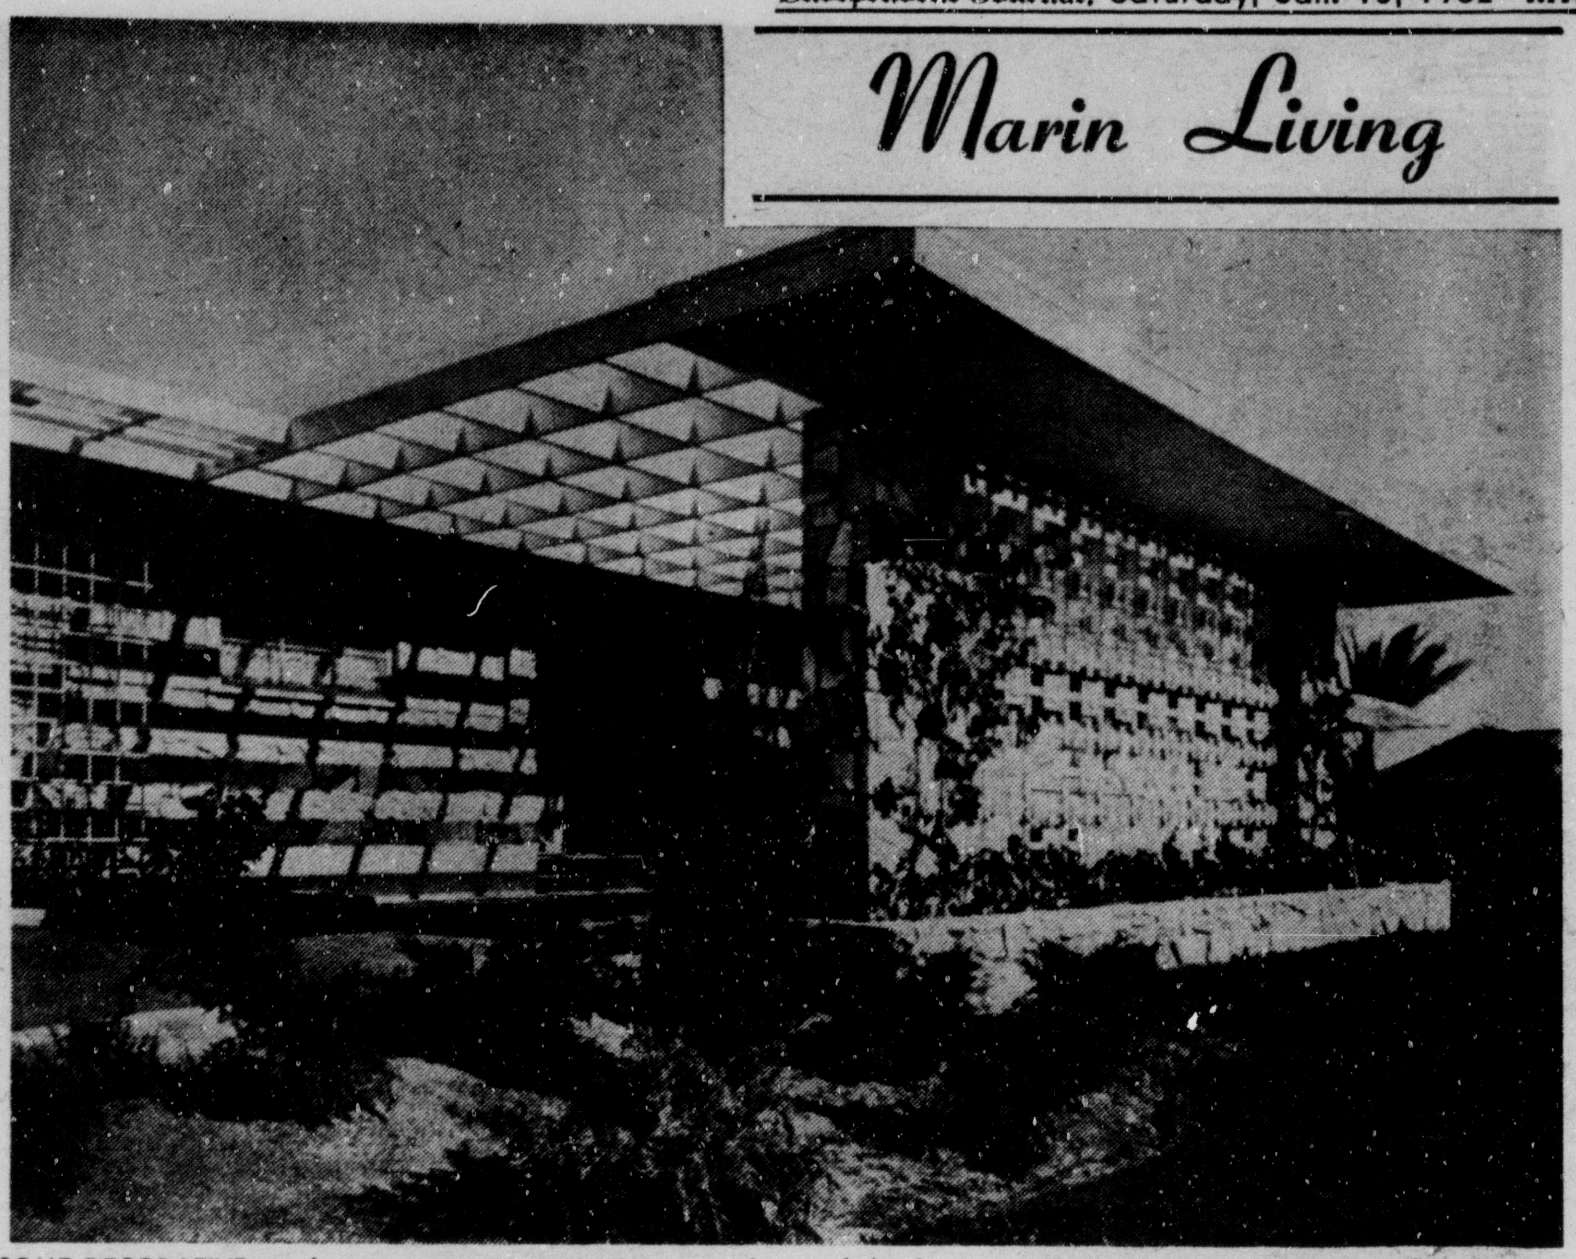
A dining alcove is an ideal place to start your paint decorating experiment. Mustard-color chairs and table on a floor that has a pickled finish or robin's egg blue furniture on a blue-green floor are two pretty combinations.

Painted floors go well with modern, too. One neophyte painter pickled a floor with water-base paint, starting with a small amount of white paint to which he'd added a considerable amount of water. He painted over dark floors in a room decorated with sculpture and abstract paintings.



SOME DECORATIVE touches can turn a carport into a real eye-catching addition to the home. The latticed theme in Western pine is carried out in the roof and the overhang of the house itself. A variation of the theme, more complicated to the eye, has been used for the side wall of the port where wood and brick are teamed for an elegant effect.

HINTS FOR HANDYMEN

Bits Of Information To Help You With Workshop Chores

Home handymen like to pass along bits of information they have picked up over the years and which might be helpful to others. Here are some tips that may be of assistance to you around the house and in the workshop:

When trying to hammer a small nail or brad in a corner where space is at a premium, hold the nail or brad with a pair of ordinary tweezers.

When you have to scrape off old, dry glue that threatens to be stubborn, soak the old glue with household vinegar to soften it.

When you want to identify a brush used for a particular type of finishing material, a practice which helps to preserve the brush, cut a small "V" for varnish or "S" for shellac (and so on) into the handle.

When you have applied a paint or varnish remover and are ready to scrape off the softened finish, use a dull rather than a sharp putty knife to lessen the danger of gouging the wood.

When you want to coat ordinary nails and screws with aluminum paint to keep them from rusting, dump them into a container of the paint and then pour off the paint.

When you want to brighten a dark foyer, use resilient floor tiles in a light, solid color.

When you have made a wire splice and want to solder it, you will get a neater job if you hold the soldering iron under the joint rather than over it.

When you are putting up studs which must be exactly the same distance apart, cut a piece of wood the proper length and use it for the spacing rather than measuring each time.

A SHORT REPORT ON THE NATIVITY SUBJECT. The response to my article on the Nativity has been overwhelming. Many people have stopped in and offered donations to help purchase a replacement for the Chamber's now worn Christmas Scene. Some donations have come by mail with heart warming letters. As yet, my all out drive is not under way, but as soon as the year-end inventories and necessary reports are finished you can expect action and you will be kept informed.

To dispell any doubt about my article, I bear no malice against the A.C.L.U. My point was made toward those who use the A.C.L.U. as a protective cloak to make an issue of something that can do no wordly good, something that is hurting absolutely no one. These minority A.C.L.U members are hurting the name and obscuring the worthy cause for which the organization stands, by leaving a connotation of unfriendliness in the minds of the readers.

Careless Indulgence In Hobbies Can Kill

A high percentage of the nearly four million deaths and disabling injuries in American homes each year can be traced to carelessness while indulging in hobbies around the house.

Most of these accidents occur in and around the workshop and the garden, two places which ordinarily contribute so much to enjoyment of leisure. In order to help cut the toll from home hobbies, here is a safety list:

Make certain there is plenty of room for equipment, tools . . . and the hobbyist. Cramped quarters lead to accidents.

Keep workshops free of litter at all times. Floors, particularly, should be cleared of scrap, oil, shavings and any obstacles that could cause tripping or uncertain footing, or fire. Sweep or mop up refuse as you go along and dispose of it safely in metal covered containers.

Keep all tools in a specific, planned, easily identified place when not in use . . . and replace them after use.

Disconnect all power tools when not in use and padlock them if possible. Workshops with power tools should be definitely out of bounds to children unless an adult is on hand to supervise.

Locate power outlets convenient to the user—but out of the easy reach of children.

Paints, Acids and other inflammables should be locked safely away in clean, dry cupboards when not in use . . . and should be non-accessible to children.

Any loose clothing—particularly neckties, flowing or loose sleeves and cuffs, should be removed or rolled up before workshop tools are used. Clothing caught in power tools can cause fatal accidents.

Goggles should always be used when there is danger of flying splinters or metal shavings.

Never reach toward cutting edges of any tool until power has been turned off and the machine stopped. Don't stand in front of a power saw when cutting.

Read all directions — and follow them. Never try to experiment by using tools for jobs which they were not designed to do.

Vary tasks to avoid fatigue. Monotony leads to carelessness—the prime cause of accidents.

Take advantage of every built-in safeguard which comes with your equipment—and add more if necessary.

Be certain to have immediately available—in the workshop itself—a first-aid emergency kit.

Garden tools, no less than workshop tools, should have a specific place for storage when not in use . . . and should always be returned to that place after use.

All power tools—such as mowers—have safe operating instructions attached. These should be read and not deviated from. In particular, children and pets should be kept safely out of the area where power mowers are being used.

All insecticides, fertilizers and the like should be locked in storage compartments when not in use — and guarded when in use. Poisons should be plainly labeled with written or printed instructions listing specific antidotes.

Home painting is best done from secure, wide, stable scaffolds. If you MUST try to paint from a ladder, make certain it is secure . . . and that children and others are kept well away from the area—out of range of paint buckets or spray, brushes or other tools.

First-aid emergency kits should be kept handy—in a nearby garage or brought to a porch or veranda station—when ANY outdoor hobby or work is to be performed.

Louvers Liven Bedroom Decor

A big idea for remodeling a small bedroom to make it more convenient and attractive is the use of sliding or folding louver doors of ponderosa pine on closets. Both types provide a full view of the closet but take up little or no usable room when open.

Furniture placement is simplified, windows adjacent to closets aren't blocked, and the room looks neater when the doors are open.

Louver doors of ponderosa pine provide the additional advantage of continuous air circulation in closets, eliminating mustiness.

Meanwhile, the beauty of the louvers—stained to bring out the natural wood grain, or painted to harmonize with decor — adds richness and warmth to the room.

Take Trees In Consideration When You Plan New Home

Established shade trees add to the value of a new home—provided they remain alive. Too often they die a year or so after the home is built from the effects of construction operations.

From the moment preliminary plans for a new home are started, the welfare of valuable trees on the property should be considered. If their requirements for health are understood, excessive tree damage can be avoided.

For best assurance that the needs of the trees will be met, a competent arborist should be engaged to work in cooperation with the architect and the building contractor throughout construction of the home.

Often a house is built within a few feet of a mature tree. Seldom does the tree survive. Many of its roots are cut in excavating for the foundations and basement. And the water table that serves the remaining roots is lowered drastically by this excavation.

How close to a mature tree a house may be built without danger of causing its death depends upon the age, size and species of tree involved, soil conditions, and other factors. In most cases, the house should be at least 20 feet from the tree; a greater distance is desirable.

In modern home construction various utility service lines are placed underground. Installation of these lines usually requires trenching; again roots are cut. And the trenches, even though backfilled immediately, serve for several years as drainage ditches that tend to lower the water table in the entire area. All underground lines should be placed as far as possible from mature, valuable trees. When roots are encountered, a tunnel dug or drilled below the root zone to accommodate the utility line is less injurious than trenching.

Earth fill placed around the trunk and over the roots is one of the most common causes of tree death. The fill has a smothering effect; it prevents the escape from the root zone of toxic gases, and blocks the entrance of oxygen. Building a "dry well" around the trunk is not sufficient to counteract the detrimental effects of the fill.

When conditions demand the placement of fill around trees, installation of a soil aeration system is advocated.

Methods of providing soil aeration vary according to the depth of the fill and other conditions.

Patio Landscape Planning Time

The patio or terrace, properly landscaped and easy of access , is the homeowners greatest asset. Not only in summer and fall when it provides for outdoor living, but in every month when a sunny day beckons, the patio is there —for sitting or for puttering with the plants.

Since the patio will command more of your leisure time in the warm months than in winter, the time to prepare and design it is now. Have it ready to enjoy when the time comes to move outdoors.

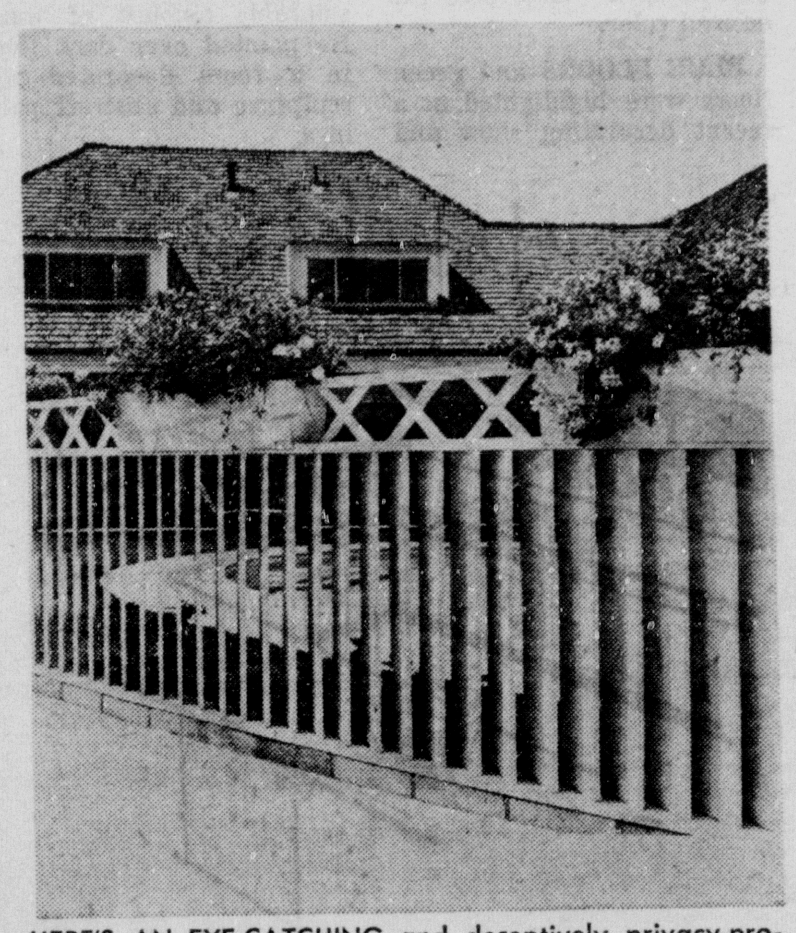
A logical starting point for planning ideas is with a local nurseryman. He can help you draw up a plan himself or direct you to a landscape architect with whom he works. And once the plan design is set, your nurseryman can help you draw up a schedule for carrying it out, or refer you to a landscape contractor.

You will find that certain shrubs and plants seem naturals for sharing your leisure with you. Shrubs that are happy in tubs, for instance, play a big role in patio planting. The Bamboos and other accent shrubs such as the swordlike New Zealand Flax or Aralia, with its big, showy leaves, are perfect on the patio.

In shrub beds around a terrace seek modest shrubs such as prostrate Junipers or the Dwarf Mugo Pine. Succulents are often most desirable and their use can lead to a hobby in itself.

Flower color should play a big role in any outdoor living area, not only in beds and borders, but in containers right on the patio. Pots of spring-blooming bulbs, Azaleas and Camellias, Geraniums and Pelargoniums can all be worked in for one season or another. Yellow Marguerites contribute heavily during much of the year. Try growing several of them in large containers.

If you seek shade in your patio, plant a deciduous tree, since its branches will be bare in winter to admit whatever sun is available. And lastly, don't overlook vines. They They will cover a close-in wall without encroaching on your outdoor living area, or cover a trellis to provide shade. Vines are useful, but often too little used in the landscape.



HERE'S AN EYE-CATCHING and deceptively privacy-producing fence of Western pine region wood. The louvered design, which resembles a venetian blind on its side, gives free rein to light and air, but the louvers prevent peeking except from one angle. Note, too, the crossed strips and flower boxes along the top of the fence.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Strawberries may be planted now for harvest in a few short months.
- Plant the perennial vegetables — rhubarb, artichoke and asparagus.
- When spraying shrubs and trees, be sure to follow the manufacturer's recommendation as to strength.
- Plant sweet peas this month. Dig a good trench and work manure into the soil in which you plant the seeds.
- If soil is dry enough, manure and/or commercial soil conditioners may be applied at this time.

Conifers Adaptable To A Hundred Uses

Conifers are shrubs and trees of a hundred uses in the garden. Some of them hug the ground and others touch the sky, while in between are a dozen more sizes and shapes to fit every garden.

We can't plant them all, but from the many varieties available, we can find several for use in the landscape large or small.

The prostrate Junipers, for instance, are familiar to most home gardeners, but how many know that there are several of these squat little evergreens available. If you stop to look, you will see the subtle differences. Tamarix Juniper is the one we all take for granted, but White's Silver King Juniper and the San Jose Spreading Juniper are only two of several other good ones. Each has its own special charm.

You could write a book on the Junipers alone, and certainly the variety to be found in nurseries would seem to warrant one. Outside the prostrate members of the family are an endless array of others. We find the Armstrong Juniper and the Pfitzer Juniper, both semi erect or semi spreading, depending on how you treat them with the shears. And there are many others of more columnar and erect shape.

Conifers are favorites in foundation plantings, and many of the junipers mentioned above serve admirably here. The pyramidal Arborvitaes are also used in foundations where space isn't cramped, and Mugho Pine is choice. Neither fills the role on its own as do the Junipers, but either fits in well with other planting.

You see conifers used as hedges, also, mostly because they are so hardy, require very little care and serve so well.

The Pines are suited even to small gardens, where their ultimate size can be minimized by pruning the lower branches up to reveal a stately trunk. Thinning the branches topside also opens the tree up, makes it more graceful in limited quarters. Monterey Pine is the most common garden showpiece, but many others are available.

Try Azaleas For Color That Lasts

By careful selection and a bit of luck, the gardener can have color from Azaleas for over half the year. This may seem incredible to those whose experience with this happy family of shrubs is limited, but it's the truth.

Indicative of the Azalea's willingness to perform under Marin's growing conditions is the fact that many of the beautiful Belgian Indica varieties show color as early as September or October. They reach full bloom before Christmas and then taper off into the New Year. As these early birds begin to fade, other Belgian Indicas take over, to be joined in short order by the magnificent Rutherfordian hybrids, then the Kurume varieties, then the Southern Indicas.

And we're not through yet. Before the list of evergreen varieties has faded out, the deciduous Mollis hybrids break their winter's rest with a brilliant burst of color. By this time it's nearly May, or will be when the last blooms fall.

Lest you still belong to that diminishing band who think of Azaleas as too tender or delicate for normal garden conditions, let's set the record straight. They may be favorites of the florist trade, but beauty and not an indication that they have to be grown under controlled growing conditions to thrive. Azaleas are important items in the general nursery trade and will thrive in most areas of the state.

Most Azaleas like shade or part shade, but the Southern Indicas stand a fair share of sun.

If Your Lot Is Small, Be Sure You Keep Your Planting Simple

Landscapers might not agree on all aspects of their trade, but there's one fundamental which none will argue about: On the small lot you can't plant everything.

This sounds all too obvious, but often as not, the home gardener succumbs to temptation and plants anything that comes to mind. His garden becomes not only overcrowded in short time, but a hodge podge. To steal a phrase from the art world, such gardens are just "too busy."

The right landscape for the small garden requires advance thought, a bit of restraint and a good, workable plan. Give yourself enough open space to bounce around in. Plant the remainder in a modest scale and you're bound to enjoy it.

The owner of a small lot has many problems which his more land-rich ancestors never dreamed of. The problem of encroaching neighbors, for instance, requires clever uses of screening material, but at the same time, screening material cannot be allowed to overpower a setting.

Our grandparents, with all their space, seldom considered outdoor living area. Today these are all important, and providing them becomes a major factor in landscape design. Planting such areas takes an experienced hand, so consult with a nurseryman or landscape architect before you set about the task.

Trees are important to any landscape, but in the small garden, their size and placement can mean success or failure. Scale is the clue to the use of trees in small city gardens. Forget the tall shade trees which go hand in hand with country living and concentrate on their more modest cousins.

For the gardener who loves cut flowers, sufficient planting beds become a prime concern. And for the hobbyist, a place to pursue his hobby is a must. Service yards, storage sheds, children's play areas—all these were easily fit into gardens of 50 years ago. Today they still have their place, but it takes an expert to fit them in. A plan is a must.

January Briefs

Many gardeners are not aware that pot-grown Geraniums can be made to flower nicely through winter when grown indoors. Choose a sunny south window—the sunnier the better—and try several pots. By planting different varieties, you may find one or another that blooms better than its mates. These can be noted and used more consistently next winter.

Pruning Camellias is a most pleasurable task, for it consists primarily of cutting a bit of stem when you cut blooms for display indoor. This is usually sufficient to keep the plants bushy and compact. However, an occasional Camellia insists on growing faster than you can keep it pruned by bloom cutting. Don't hesitate to cut growth back.

African Violets are probably America's favorite indoor plant. This is due not only to their charm when in bloom, but to their willingness to bloom throughout the year if properly cared for. Temperature and light are the main requirements, a normal room temperature of 70 degrees during the day and around 60 at night is desirable as is about the same amount of light that comes from an east window. Water them only when the soil surface seems dry and never keep the soil soggy.

Here it is only January and Gladiolus bulbs are showing up in nurseries again. For those who just lifted last year's glads a month or so ago, this should be a reminder that these colorful show flowers are with us for many months each year. Make a planting now and follow up with successive plantings at monthly intervals until July. And don't forget to check over the new varieties being offered for the first time in 1962. If you are a real Gladiolus fan, this is a needless reminder.

ROOT FEEDING PEST

When insect damage occurs on leaves or twigs, it is fairly easy to find the responsible pest. Root-feeding insects are more difficult to detect.

The Ground Mealybug—which sucks juices from tree roots—is a common California example of the latter type. Control measures include Malathion or similar insecticide. For thorough inspection and estimate (no charge) call GL 3-3192.

Take Trees In Consideration When You Plan New Home

Established shade trees add to the value of a new home—provided they remain alive. Too often they die a year or so after the home is built from the effects of construction operations.

From the moment preliminary plans for a new home are started, the welfare of valuable trees on the property should be considered. If their requirements for health are understood, excessive tree damage can be avoided.

For best assurance that the needs of the trees will be met, a competent arborist should be engaged to work in cooperation with the architect and the building contractor throughout construction of the home.

Often a house is built within a few feet of a mature tree. Seldom does the tree survive. Many of its roots are cut in excavating for the foundations and basement. And the water table that serves the remaining roots is lowered drastically by this excavation.

How close to a mature tree a house may be built without danger of causing its death depends upon the age, size and species of tree involved, soil conditions, and other factors. In most cases, the house should be at least 20 feet from the tree; a greater distance is desirable.

In modern home construction various utility service lines are placed underground. Installation of these lines usually requires trenching; again roots are cut. And the trenches, even though backfilled immediately, serve for several years as drainage ditches that tend to lower the water table in the entire area. All underground lines should be placed as far as possible from mature, valuable trees. When roots are encountered, a tunnel dug or drilled below the root zone to accommodate the utility line is less injurious than trenching.

Earth fill placed around the trunk and over the roots is one of the most common causes of tree death. The fill has a smothering effect; it prevents the escape from the root zone of toxic gases, and blocks the entrance of oxygen. Building a "dry well" around the trunk is not sufficient to counteract the detrimental effects of the fill.

When conditions demand the placement of fill around trees, installation of a soil aeration system is advocated.

Methods of providing soil aeration vary according to the depth of the fill and other conditions.

Patio Landscape Planning Time

The patio or terrace, properly landscaped and easy of access , is the homeowners greatest asset. Not only in summer and fall when it provides for outdoor living, but in every month when a sunny day beckons, the patio is there —for sitting or for puttering with the plants.

Since the patio will command more of your leisure time in the warm months than in winter, the time to prepare and design it is now. Have it ready to enjoy when the time comes to move outdoors.

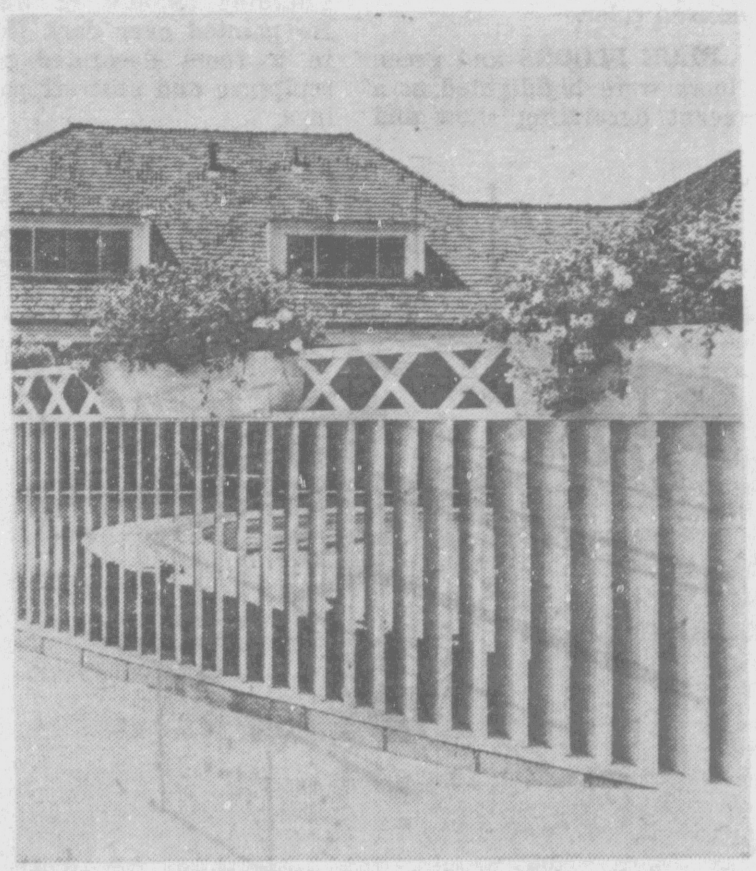
A logical starting point for planning ideas is with a local nurseryman. He can help you draw up a plan himself or direct you to a landscape architect with whom he works. And once the plan design is set, your nurseryman can help you draw up a schedule for carrying it out, or refer you to a landscape contractor.

You will find that certain shrubs and plants seem naturals for sharing your leisure with you. Shrubs that are happy in tubs, for instance, play a big role in patio planting. The Bamboos and other accent shrubs such as the swordlike New Zealand Flax or Aralia, with its big, showy leaves, are perfect on the patio.

In shrub beds around a terrace seek modest shrubs such as prostrate Junipers or the Dwarf Mugo Pine. Succulents are often most desirable and their use can lead to a hobby in itself.

Flower color should play a big role in any outdoor living area, not only in beds and borders, but in containers right on the patio. Pots of spring-blooming bulbs, Azaleas and Camellias, Geraniums and Pelargoniums can all be worked in for one season or another. Yellow Marguerites contribute heavily during much of the year. Try growing several of them in large containers.

If you seek shade in your patio, plant a deciduous tree, since its branches will be bare in winter to admit whatever sun is available. And lastly, don't overlook vines. They will cover a close-in wall without encroaching on your outdoor living area, or cover a trellis to provide shade. Vines are useful, but often too little used in the landscape.



HERE'S AN EYE-CATCHING and deceptively privacy-producing fence of Western pine region wood. The louvered design, which resembles a venetian blind on its side, gives free rein to light and air, but the louvers prevent peeking except from one angle. Note, too, the crossed strips and flower boxes along the top of the fence.

THIS NEW hybrid tea rose, developed by Arp Nursery Co. of Tyler, Texas, has been named the Speaker Sam honoring the late Sam Rayburn. It is an "offspring" of the Peace Rose, carrying the same dark leathery foliage and strong thick stem. The Speaker Sam has immense, very pale yellow-centered flowers with a vividly banded red edge for each heavy petal.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Strawberries may be planted now for harvest in a few short months.
- Plant the perennial vegetables — rhubarb, artichoke and asparagus.
- When spraying shrubs and trees, be sure to follow the manufacturer's recommendation as to strength.
- Plant sweet peas this month. Dig a good trench and work manure into the soil in which you plant the seeds.
- If soil is dry enough, manure and/or commercial soil conditioners may be applied at this time.

Conifers Adaptable To A Hundred Uses

Conifers are shrubs and trees of a hundred uses in the garden. Some of them hug the ground and others touch the sky, while in between are a dozen more sizes and shapes to fit every garden.

We can't plant them all, but from the many varieties available, we can find several for use in the landscape large or small.

The prostrate Junipers, for instance, are familiar to most home gardeners, but how many know that there are several of these squat little evergreens available. If you stop to look, you will see the subtle differences. Tamarix Juniper is the one we all take for granted, but White's Silver King Juniper and the San Jose Spreading Juniper are only two of several other good ones. Each has its own special charm.

You could write a book on the Junipers alone, and certainly the variety to be found in nurseries would seem to warrant one. Outside the prostrate members of the family are an endless array of others. We find the Armstrong Juniper and the Pfitzer Juniper, both semi erect or semi spreading, depending on how you treat them with the shears. And there are many others of more columnar and erect shape.

Conifers are favorites in foundation plantings, and many of the junipers mentioned above serve admirably here. The pyramidal Arborvitaes are also used in foundations where space isn't cramped, and Mugho Pine is choice. Neither fills the role on its own as do the Junipers, but either fits in well with other planting.

You see conifers used as hedges, also, mostly because they are so hardy, require very little care and serve so well.

The Pines are suited even to small gardens, where their ultimate size can be minimized by pruning the lower branches up to reveal a stately trunk. Thinning the branches topside also opens the tree up, makes it more graceful in limited quarters. Monterey Pine is the most common garden showpiece, but many others are available.

Try Azaleas For Color That Lasts

By careful selection and a bit of luck, the gardener can have color from Azaleas for over half the year. This may seem incredible to those whose experience with this happy family of shrubs is limited, but it's the truth.

Indicative of the Azalea's willingness to perform under Marin's growing conditions is the fact that many of the beautiful Belgian Indica varieties show color as early as September or October. They reach full bloom before Christmas and then taper off into the New Year. As these early birds begin to fade, other Belgian Indicas take over, to be joined in short order by the magnificent Rutherfordian hybrids, then the Kurume varieties, then the Southern Indicas.

And we're not through yet. Before the list of evergreen varieties has faded out, the deciduous Mollis hybrids break their winter's rest with a brilliant burst of color. By this time it's nearly May, or will be when the last blooms fall.

Lest you still belong to that diminishing band who think of Azaleas as too tender or delicate for normal garden conditions, let's set the record straight. They may be favorites of the florist trade, but beauty and not an indication that they have to be grown under controlled growing conditions to thrive. Azaleas are important items in the general nursery trade and will thrive in most areas of the state.

If Your Lot Is Small, Be Sure You Keep Your Planting Simple

Landscapers might not agree on all aspects of their trade, but there's one fundamental which none will argue about: On the small lot you can't plant everything.

This sounds all too obvious, but often as not, the home gardener succumbs to temptation and plants anything that comes to mind. His garden becomes not only overcrowded in short time, but a hodge podge. To steal a phrase from the art world, such gardens are just "too busy."

GROUCHO MARX in a straight dramatic role sounds like an unlikely bit of casting. But Groucho will appear as a father opposed to his teen-age daughter's (Brooke Hayward) marriage in "The Hold Out" on "The General Electric Theater" tomorrow night at 9 o'clock on KPIX. Dennis Hopper, center, plays the daughter's fiance.

ROBERT YOUNG welcomes a small canine visitor to the set during the making of the "Window on Main Street" episode to be seen Monday at 8:30 p.m. on KPIX.

GROUCHO MARX in a straight dramatic role sounds like an unlikely bit of casting. But Groucho will appear as a father opposed to his teen-age daughter's (Brooke Hayward) marriage in "The Hold Out" on "The General Electric Theater" tomorrow night at 9 o'clock on KPIX. Dennis Hopper, center, plays the daughter's fiance.

ROBERT YOUNG welcomes a small canine visitor to the set during the making of the "Window on Main Street" episode to be seen Monday at 8:30 p.m. on KPIX.

A TWIST PARTY figures in next Friday's episode (9 p.m. on KGO) of "77 Sunset Strip." So Edd Byrnes, the Kookie of the series, gets in a bit of practice twisting with pretty Grace Lee Whitney.
